Massive Lead For President

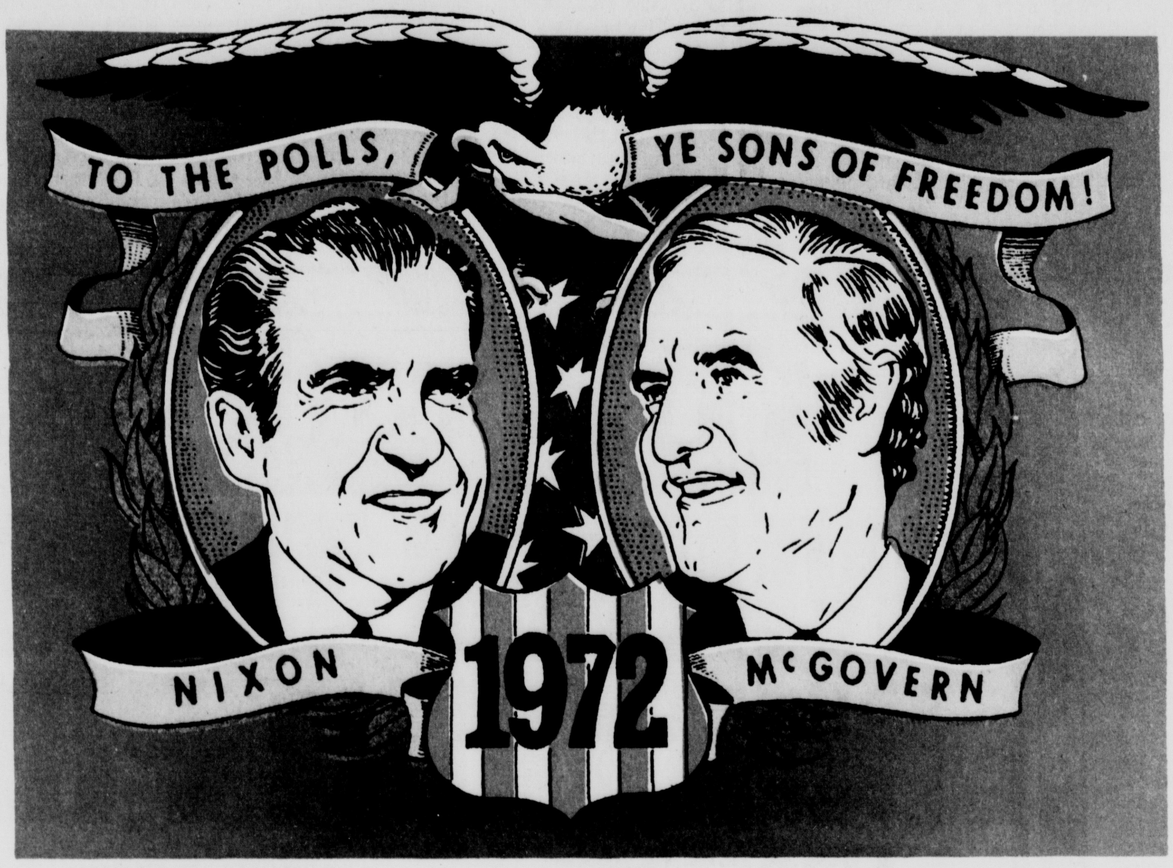

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — The final Gallup Poll before today's election found President Nixon leading Sen. George McGovern by 61 per cent to 35 per cent. Pollster George Gallup called it a "lead of landslide proportions."

After allocating the undecided vote, the division of the major party vote was 62-38 in favor of the President, Gallup said in announcing the survey results Monday.

The survey was based on interviews with about 3,500 persons nationwide between last Thursday and Saturday. The previous Gallup poll, taken Oct. 13-18, found Nixon leading 59-36, a margin of 23 points.

Gallup said the announcement of a tentative agreement to end the Vietnam war appeared neither to have helped nor hurt the Republican incumbent.

Nixon made gains in the South in the final week of the campaign and was headed toward receiving the greatest majority of the popular vote in that region of any Republican presidential candidate, he said.

U. S. Vote Is 'Heavy'

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP Political Writer

Generally poor weather over most of the nation failed to stem an anticipated record turnout today as voters chose between "four more years" of Richard M. Nixon and Democrat George S. McGovern, "the come home America" candidate.

Heavy rains or thunderstorms troubled many sections except the West and Northeast. And still, Americans were up early and in large numbers everywhere.

By day's end, more than 80 million Americans were expected to cast their ballots. Besides the race between the Republican President and his uphill-fighting rival from the Senate, voters will pick 18 governors, 33 senators and an entire House.

Nixon voted at San Clemente, Calif., near the Western White House. McGovern returned to his hometown, Mitchell, S.D. Nixon's running mate, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, balloted in Towson, Md., a suburb of Baltimore, while McGovern's stablemate, Sargent Shriver, cast his vote in Rockville, Md., a Washington suburb.

John Schmitz, presidential nominee of the American Party, planned to vote at midday in Tustin, Calif., his home city.

Two former presidents, Harry S. Truman and Lyndon B. Johnson, were using absentee ballots. Another onetime White House resident, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, voted in a Catholic school in Manhattan.

Republicans were hoping that Nixon would win in a landslide and that it would produce a net GOP gain of 5 Senate seats and 41 House seats—enough for Republican control of Congress.

The final Gallup Poll found Nixon leading McGovern by 61 to 35 per cent.

The first voting results came from the hamlet of Dixville Notch, N.H. It went for Nixon 16 to 3. But for Republican enthusiasts there is this dampening fact: Dixville Notch hasn't picked a presidential winner since it started midnight voting in 1960.

Despite polls showing him headed for a massive defeat, a hoarse and weary McGovern campaigned to the wire Monday. He insisted "we are going to prevail" and denounced alleged "deceit and deception on Vietnam" by Nixon as he spanned the continent from Philadelphia to Long Beach, Calif., before going to Sioux Falls.

Nixon, meanwhile, predicted "we will soon reach an agreement which will end the war in Vietnam." He made the statement in a 13-paragraph election-eve television speech from the Western White House at the end of the least active election effort by any major-party presidential candidate since Franklin D. Roosevelt in the wartime campaign of 1944.

The vice-presidential candidates were out appealing for support in the final hours. Democrat Sargent Shriver campaigned from Pittsburgh to Beaumont, Tex., including a visit with former President Lyndon B. Johnson at his Texas ranch. Vice President Spiro T. Agnew made appearances in Philadephia and Richmond, Va.

An estimated 108 million Americans were registered to vote in the first presidential election open to 18-year-olds. Experts predicted the vote might surpass by as much as 10 million the 73 million who voted in 1968.

Independent polls predicted the Nixon-Agnew ticket would draw more than 60 per cent of the popular vote though many analysts said the race would be closer in the big states of the North and Midwest and in California.

McGovern centered most of his campaigning in those states, hoping to string together enough states to win the 270 electoral votes that are needed to capture the presidency without regard to the overall popular vote. The electoral votes are

Missouri's Turnout Is Heavy

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Polling places around Missouri reported a heavy voter turnout today, despite drizzle over central and southeast portions of the state and temperatures holding in the upper 40's.

The Secretary of State's office predicted the largest turnout in Missouri history with 1,975,000 expected to vote. The previous record was 1,887,331 in 1960.

Voters will select a new governor, 10 congressmen, four top state officers, 17 state senators and 163 state representatives plus hundreds of city and county officials. Delivery of the state's 12 electoral votes for either Republican President Richard M. Nixon or Democrat George McGovern also hangs in balance.

Light rain was falling in most of the state's eastern half as polls opened at 6 a.m. The National Weather Service predicted rain would move out of Missouri during the afternoon.

Election officials in St. Louis and St. Louis County reported voters lined up at polls during the morning hours. Some persons hoping to vote before work left polling places because of the delay, hoping to return before the 7 p.m. deadline.

St. Louis County Election Director Henry Koch said about 31 per cent of those registered, or 155,000, had voted by 11 a.m. In the city, officials estimated about 25 per cent voted during the same period.

In St. Louis County 19,157 absentee ballots were cast before Monday's 4 p.m. deadline. The previous high was 13,560 in 1968.

The city reported 7,164 absentee ballots cast. Registration declined in St. Louis by 10,000 in the last four years.

Officials in metropolitan Kansas City and St. Joseph also reported a heavy voter turnout. Frank Martin of the Kansas City board of election commissioners predicted 160,000 to 165,000 ballots would be cast.

Sunny skies were reported in those two western Missouri locations.

In northeast Missouri, Hannibal officials said the vote was running about the same as 1968, when 3,000 ballots were cast by noon.

In Jefferson City, Cole County Clerk Monte Christian said "people who have worked in polling places for 25 and 30 years say they haven't seen a turnout like this."

Voting was said to be higher than 1968 in primarily rural southeast Missouri because of overnight and morning rains which kept farmers out of their fields.

Cole County Clerk Monte L. Christian said many were voting early so they could take advantage of the holiday and go hunting.

The nation is curious to know how Missourians treat the presidential race because of the controversy over Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton's withdrawal as McGovern's running mate. Newspaper polls have shown Nixon, who carried the state by 20,000 votes in 1968, with a big advantage.

Sen. Stuart Symington holds the state's largest victory margin. He won by 570,000 votes in 1964.

Eagleton won the lieutenant governor's race by 521,642 votes in 1964. Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, who leaves office in January, won by 431,000 votes in 1964 and was re-elected by 381,000 in 1968. All three are Democrats.

Most of the campaign attention has been

Fighter Is Lost In North

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command reported the loss today of the third F111 swing-wing fighter-bomber in less than six weeks and also announced the loss of a Navy A7 during raids on the southern panhandle of North Vietnam.

All three crewmen aboard the two planes were listed as missing.

Seven other Americans were rescued today after bad weather forced their helicopter own in enemy territory 90 miles south of Da Nang. The helicopter went down Monday night, but the men were not attacked during the night, the Command said.

Like the two other F111s lost on Sept. 28 and Oct. 17, the plane today was on a night mission, flying alone on a computerized course, when it vanished from command post radar screens shortly before dawn.

North Vietnam claimed that the first two F111s were shot down by its forces, but by noon today Hanoi Radio had not mentioned the third plane.

Meanwhile, U.S. sources reported that North Vietnam is rushing more troops into South Vietnam and rebuilding base camps along the Cambodian border in efforts to strengthen its negotiating hand.

The sources suggested that the North Vietnamese in future negotiations might offer to dismantle the bases and pull out the troops in exchange for concessions from the U.S. and South Vietnamese governments.

The Americans and the South Vietnamese have launched a joint air-ground campaign aimed at blocking the North Vietnamese.

The buildup is reported taking place in South Vietnam's 3rd Military Region, which includes Saigon and 11 surrounding provinces, and in the northern Mekong Delta.

Local Turnout Is Noted

A sample of selected precincts across the city Tuesday morning revealed that at least 1,801 voters cast their ballots as of 11:30 a.m.

One observer, commenting on the figure for The Democrat-Capital, said it reflected "a seemingly heavier vote this year."

Vote totals were obtained from two precincts in each of the city's four wards.

The results of the mid-day check are as follows: First Ward: Mark Twain School, first precinct, 270; and Heber Hunt School, third precinct, 340.

Second Ward: Jefferson School, second precinct, 152; and Washington School, fourth precinct, 190.

Third Ward: Junior High School, first precinct, 180; and Whittier School, third precinct, 185.

Fourth Ward: Horace Mann School, third precinct, 226; and Masonic Temple, fourth precinct, 258.

The polls, which opened at 6 a.m., will remain open until 7 p.m.

German Agreement Approved in Bonn

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Chancellor Willy Brandt's cabinet today approved the historic treaty to normalize its relations with East Germany. The Communist regime was expected to do likewise shortly, party chief Erich Honecker having declared that the pact was welcomed.

A draft of the treaty was agreed on Monday night following two years of negotiations. The Bonn cabinet authorized Egon Bahr, the state secretary who negotiated for Brandt, to initial it "shortly" with the East German negotiator, Michael Kohl.

In the wake of the conclusion of the treaty, Danish Foreign Minister Knud B. Andersen announced that his government as well as those of Sweden and Norway expected to complete arrangements for diplomatic recognition of East Germany in two or three weeks. Denmark and Norway as well as West Germany are members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Bonn's main concern has been to avoid anything that might worsen chances for eventual German reunification. Details of the treaty were kept secret while both sides studied it. But one West Berlin newspaper gave this outline of the treaty's main points:

—East Germany will send an ambassador to Bonn and Bonn will send a minister to East Berlin, each to be called a "plenipotentiary."

—West Germany will add a letter stating that it will represent West Berlin in all matters except those of status and security, which are reserved to the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union as the occupation powers. East Germany will accept this letter.

—East Germany will maintain the same trade privileges as before, treated as a favored partner on the basis of a national whole as proclaimed by West Germany.

Conclusion of the treaty could give a boost to Brandt's chances in the general election Nov. 19.

Former Sen. Long Dead at Age of 64

EOLIA, MO. (AP)—Former United States Senator Edward Long has died of an apparent heart attack suffered at his farm near this northeast Missouri town.

Long, 64, became sick about 10 p.m. Monday and called for help from workers at his Brookhill farm. He was pronounced dead at the farmhouse.

Long, whose political career began in 1936, was defeated in a bid for re-election to the U.S. Senate in 1968. He lost in the Democratic primary to Thomas F. Eagleton, then lieutenant governor of Missouri. Eagleton went on to win the Senate seat which he still holds.

Long headed a Senate investigation into possible federal wiretapping beginning in 1965.

In May 1967, Life magazine said Long had misused his Senate subcommittee's investigation in an effort to help Teamsters Union president James Hoffa. The magazine said Long got $48,000 in legal fees from Morris Shenker of St. Louis, then an attorney for Hoffa.

Long said the fees resulted from his referring five clients to Shenker, that the cases had no connection with the Teamsters union and that Shenker was not Hoffa's attorney in 1963 and 1964 when the $48,000 was paid.

In 1968, Life magazine accused Long of helping to halt a public housing project in St. Louis and have it redesigned to use gas instead of electric heat to accomodate a pipefitters union local which the magazine said had contributed to his re-election campaign fund. Long denied the allegations which were said to have played a large part in his defeat in the primary.

Long was admitted to the Missouri bar in 1932 after attending the University of Missouri and Culver-Stockton College. He served four years as Pike County prosecutor starting in 1936.

In 1944 Long won a seat in the Missouri Senate, where he remained for 12 years.

Council Accepts Several Bids; Clears Way For Rezoning Effort

By KEITH A. OWEN
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

The City Council Monday evening accepted bids on several items and cleared the way on zoning restrictions for the planned expansion of Bothwell Hospital.

Acting on a favorable recommendation by the planning and zoning commission, the council approved the rezoning from single dwelling unit to apartment house of several lots near 14th and Thompson. Under city zoning regulations, hospitals fall under apartment type dwellings.

The council also passed unanimously a resolution supporting the efforts of Parkhurst Manufacturing Co. to secure access to Highway 65 at the point where Morgan Street would intersect if it were extended. A Nov. 16 hearing is scheduled with the State Highway Commission concerning the request. The access is intended to improve the traffic flow for potential industrialization of the area near what is now the end of Morgan.

The precouncil session saw the council direct the initiators of an annexation plan to plat their property and return with more detailed information about plans for a 13.2-acre tract of land just north of Highway 65 and west of Grand Avenue. Jim Mathewson was the principle spokesman for the group seeking to have the property, site of a future modular home subdivision, annexed to the city.

The main reason for the desired annexation is to allow hooking onto the city's sewer system, it was revealed. However, several councilmen expressed worry over the non-conforming use clause, which bars the city from forcing developers to bring streets and other facets of a subdivision up to municipal standards after it has already been annexed.

The process of annexation, which requires council approval, a court decision and voter approval, takes several months and the developers wish to continue work on the subdivision as the proceedings continue. One councilman suggested the developers first bring the subdivision up to city specifications, but Mathewson pointed to the risk of voter disapproval.

Mayor Jerry Jones, said that, as a matter of compromise, the property should be platted, a show of good faith by the developers that the council would be willing to accept.

A short discussion on revenue sharing was also held in the precouncil session and it was decided that council business meetings will be held in November to decide how to allocate the funds from the first payment. That check is now expected in early December. It was originally expected at the end of October.

Carl Franklin of the Third Ward noted that everyone he had spoken to had expressed the opinion that the money ought to be spent on benefits rather than be rebated or used to reduce taxes. Fourth Ward Councilman George Lockett, who originally suggested such a tax cut, said he had changed his mind on the matter.

Mayor Jones said a public hearing is scheduled for Monday, and indicated that further discussion on the federal funds might be carried on then.

A public hearing concerning condemnation of houses at 800 and 720 East Fourth and at 240 East Boonville was set for 7 p.m. Jan. 8.

The council passed ordinances prohibiting parking on the west side of Ohio between 16th and 17th; authorizing the installation of mercury vapor street lights at 2301 North Woodlawn and at the corner of 17th and Collins, and authorizing the installation of a fire hydrant at the corner of Green Ridge Road and Klassic.

An ordinance will be drafted to authorize the installation of a fire hydrant on the south side of Sharon Lane 200 feet west of Klassic.

The contract for a bituminous surface distributor was awarded to G. W. Van Kipple Co. who submitted the low bid of

End of McGovern's Dream Might Come in Sioux Falls Motel

By SAUL PETT
AP Special Correspondent

SIOUX FALLS, S.D., (AP) — If this is truly the end of the impossible dream, if the unbeatable foe remains unbeaten, if it all ends tonight in the chill of widely predicted defeat at a Holiday Inn in Sioux Falls, the McGovern likely to have the most difficult adjustment will not be the candidate.

Not George McGovern, but his grandson, Matthew Rowen, the family's youngest campaigner, who kept smiling and clapping and enchanting the electorate to the end. Unlike his grandfather, the serene little boy with the blue eyes and the flaxen hair has had little preparation in the nine months of his life for the moment the cheering stops. His days have been filled with crowds, motorcades, noise, motion and hoopla, and he has loved it.

In the 50 years of his life, George McGovern has had ample psychic preparation for defeat and loneliness. He is accustomed to being told he will lose, though he has lost only once in five tries. If he is ignored by the public after tonight, it will be a familiar experience. He began his run for President virtually having to spell his name to a vastly indifferent electorate which asked, "George who?"

"Hopeless causes" are not new to this Don Quixote from the plains. The first time he ran for office he was a lonely Democrat running for Congress in Republican South Dakota in 1956. In those days, when he passed out campaign cards to prospective voters, he had to watch them being torn in half and dropped at his feet. He won, anyway.

Still, in this cruelest of American sports, politics, a grim kind of floating parlor game persists among reporters and other McGovern watchers who have followed him down to the moment of truth Tuesday in the motel where he'll watch the returns.

Despite brave pronouncements from a hoarse throat, does he actually feel in his heart of hearts that he still has a chance of winning when an overwhelming number of polls and experts say no? How will it be for this basically shy man to come this far and no farther after the longest presidential campaign in modern politics, after 22 months of trying, after coming from nowhere against all the odds to win the pennant, only to lose in a lopsided World Series?

"He still thinks he'll make it," said one of his senior advisers, who doesn't.

"He has all the tenacity of the long-distance runner and the sense of mission of a preacher's son. He truly thinks this has been a battle of good and evil, and God will not desert the good.

★ ★ ★

"Most of us, his older aides, are realistic. We see the polls. And now I know, as I suspected before, that you can't come from the reform wing, or any one wing of a party, and hope to consolidate the party around you. You have to come from the center. You can't be antipolitician in the spring and head a major party in the fall."

Thus, many Democratic orators running for office this year had trouble remembering the top of the ticket. Many other pros, especially the old pros, shared platforms with McGovern in stony silence.

One surprising exception was Mayor Richard Daley of Chicago, who came around despite being denied a seat at the convention that nominated the junior senator from South Dakota. On the last Friday before the first Tuesday, hizzoner gave McGovern a wing-ding rally, where the party line was clear. One old pro on the platform was actually overheard telling the sullen starer next to him: "Whatsa matter? You got arthritis? Clap."

People who know him best say that win or lose George Stanley McGovern will not cut loose emotionally when the final verdict is in. In Miami, when the word came from the Democratic convention that he had won the California challenge, which was tantamount to the nomination, the candidate quietly accepted congratulations and left the parlor of his hotel suite. He returned with a tray of fruit which he passed to his guests. That was the celebration.

"If he loses the election," says Dick Dougherty, his press secretary, "He'll be very resilient. He'll be regretful beyond his own vanity, regretful for the country because he has such a low opinion of Richard Nixon.

"But he—we—do not expect to lose. We are very skeptical of the polls. They do not agree with what we see and sense. The crowds were good and were getting better. And our own canvassers show considerable difference with the polls."

"If he loses," says James Rowen, the candidate's son-in-law, "he will not be crushed emotionally or personally. This is not the be-all or the end-all for him. But he will have to do a lot of pondering, to readjust intellectually to the idea that a majority of Americans didn't see Richard Nixon the way he did. He'll rest, he'll think awhile, and then go back to the Senate."

George McGovern is said to be a "very interior man," with great inner control and outer reserve, whose skin has been thickened by 16 years in Washington—two terms in the House, one stint as head of the Food for Peace Program and now in his second term in the Senate.

★ ★ ★

But that skin and that inner discipline cracked somewhat last week in the famous "KMA Caper" at the airport in Battle Creek, Mich. Yet even this showed a controlled indignation expressed deliberately.

The heckler was chanting "four more years." Not content with that, the young man shouted to the tired candidate for president, "Nixon will beat you so bad you'll wish you never left South Dakota."

Whereupon the former bomber pilot, student preacher and college teacher put one hand on the young man's shoulder, another hand on the other shoulder, leaned over, said into a hostile ear, "I've got a secret for you," and issued an invitation heard around the world.

"After all," Frank Mankiewicz, campaign aide, said later with unassailable logic, "that is a normal response for a Democrat. What else could he say? Kiss my elephant?"

More often than not, somebody else was getting the best lines in this Democratic campaign. There was the rally in New York when Gene McCarthy brought his celebrated jab out of semi-retirement:

"Nixon's great defense is that his failures are so balanced . . . The ship is sinking but not listing. There is no water in the first class cabins."

There was the rally in Jersey City when Ted Kennedy warmed up the crowd with the soaring joy of a politician in full gallop:

"It isn't easy to be found with your hand in the till, your foot in your mouth, your tongue in your cheek and your eye on the polls all at the same time, but the Republicans are doing it!"

It was red meat, and the crowd loved it. George McGovern came on and put it on a long, low flame. You could almost see the juice running out.

But he has had his moments of eloquence. He told the story of a young black man in New York who said to him, "This country is going to break your heart on election day. I don't think the people of this country are as good as you think they are."

McGovern continued: "But I come to the closing days of this campaign with a different view about America. What I have found is a different kind of hunger that I suspect lies deep, even in the heart of that skeptical young man.

"I think in his own way, he was trying to call on me to reassure him that life can be decent, life can be good, life can be fair, life can be dignified for all the people of this country."

Being a private person, McGovern rarely parts the curtain on the basic motif of the inner man. He came about as close as he ever does in an interview with Life magazine.

"I don't know why I take on these hopeless causes," he said. "But they don't seem hopeless to me . . . I think my wife would say I have a rather large ego that has to be satisfied. But it usually starts with a feeling that something is important and worth doing."

He learns Tuesday in the Holiday Inn in Sioux Falls, S.D., whether, and to what extent, the last cause was hopeless.

Extension Club History Topic of Miss O'Briant

The history of extension clubs in Pettis County will be the topic of Miss Opal O'Briant, former area home economist for the University of Missouri Extension Division at the Friday Fall Luncheon for Pettis County Extension Homemakers at the Ramada Inn.

Although only in organized groups for 40 years, Miss O'Briant will tell of women's work in the county for the past 60 years.

The noon luncheon which is open to all area women, will be preceded by a morning of workshops. Mrs. Jessie Quinn will demonstrate floral arrangements and the making of corsages and Mrs. W. W. Forbes, LaMonte, will show mint making and cake decorating. Each hour-long workshop will be presented at 9:30 and 10:30 a.m. in the educational building of Broadway Presbyterian Church.

Miss Opal O'Briant

Awards for the "Outstanding Homemaker of the Year" and "Why I Became an Extension Club Member" will be given at the luncheon.

Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Jason Chamberlin, 826-2132, by Wednesday.

Club Note

The culture, mores and apparel of several countries was told to members of High Point Extension Club Wednesday by Mrs. M. J. Hatten. Countries discussed included India, Indonesia, Somali Republic and Ghana.

Mrs. Hatten lived in these countries during her husband's service with the U.S. Agricultural Department from 1952 to 1967.

Following her talk a collection for Butterfield Boys Club was taken.

Guests at the meeting which was held at the home of Mrs. Gentry Patterson were Mrs. Larry Ryan and Mrs. Earl Lashley.

Careless Drivers Cause Pet Peeve

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with those people who have no compunction about cutting you off by coming out of a side street or driveway onto a main road, causing brakes to be slammed, hopefully in time. Often there is not even a car behind and they could have easily waited. I can sympathize with those trying to get out into traffic when there is a long line (I have been in that position, too) but the ones I am annoyed with think they are the only people on the road and their convenience comes first. They never seem aware of the danger they are creating. — GRACE

For Women

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — My small housedog has developed the terrible habit of jumping up on the piano and walking back and forth on the keys. Our friends call him "Mucho, the musical dog." I have tried everything to get him to stop this but with no luck. Now a nearly new piano needs a tune-up job and I really need help. — BECKY

DEAR POLLY — I think the best way to remove sticky adhesive that price stickers leave on many things is to cover the spot with cooking oil, let it stand for a few minutes, and wipe off. Not a trace is left and no scratches are made by scraping. We are great for pasta dishes and usually serve spaghetti to guests. After many years of soaking tablecloths and napkins, washing shirts and warning guests of stains, I decided on a "cure-all" as well as a conversation piece. I bought red table mats and made red and white checked gingham bibs with napkins to match. Now there is no more soaking or warning and family and guests take on a festive air all dressed up in their bibs as they enjoy their spaghetti with great abandon. — MRS. H. P. W.

DEAR POLLY — I want to tell Mrs. C. B. S. that paste wax will remove the heel marks on her tile floors with just a bit of effort. It is also great for removing heel marks from shoes when one is accidentlly kicked by the heel of the other shoe. Your column is great and has helped me in so many ways. — MRS. N. R.

Thank you, Mrs. N. R. Your nice words made my day. Did you know that liquid wax will also remove such marks? — POLLY

The Missouri Optometric Association

Mu Iota Donates Foods

Mu Iota chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met Thursday at the home of Mrs. Tom Hall, 1803 South Missouri where Mrs. Alan Diehl, chapter ways and means chairman, reported to members on her trip to the Elmer Childs home with food stuffs donated by the group.

President, Mrs. Gail Demand read notes from former chapter members Mrs. Jim Wheeler of Houston, Tex., Mrs. Jim Gwinn of Gulfport, Miss., and Mrs. Clayton Alcorn of Springfield.

Members were reminded of the Christmas dance set for Dec. 16 at the Ramada Inn and names for the Christmas gift exchange were drawn.

Mrs. Hall presented a cultural program on "Poetry and Music."

As a sauce for a steamed pudding mix together ½ cup sugar, ½ cup heavy cream and ¼ cup butter in the top part of a double boiler; cook over boiling water for 15 minutes.

Denture Invention

For People with "Uppers" and "Lowers"

The nearest thing to having your own teeth is possible now with a plastic cream discovery that actually holds both "uppers" and "lowers" as never before possible.

It's a revolutionary discovery called FIXODENT®, for daily home use. (U.S. Pat. #3,003,988) With FIXODENT many denture wearers now eat, speak, laugh, with little worry of dentures coming loose.

FIXODENT forms an elastic membrane that helps absorb the shock of biting and chewing. You may bite harder, chew better, eat more naturally.

FIXODENT may help you speak more clearly, be more at ease.

The special pencil-point dispenser lets you spot FIXODENT with precision . . . where needed! One application may last for hours. Dentures that fit are essential to health. See your dentist regularly. Get easy-to-use FIXODENT Denture Adhesive Cream at all drug counters.

DEATH NOTICES

Mrs. Clara Cordes

Mrs. Clara Cordes, 88, Route 1, died at 8:15 a.m. Tuesday at her home.

She was born in Nichols, Iowa, Jan. 13, 1884, daughter of the late Karl and Henrietta Hager Riecke. On. Oct. 16, 1901, she was married to William H. Cordes, who preceded her in death, Sept. 21, 1924.

Mrs. Cordes came to Missouri in 1886 with her parents and lived on a farm near Mora until 1946, when she moved to Sedalia. She was a member of the First United Methodist Church.

Mrs. Cordes is survived by five sons, Reuben Cordes, 1007 South Massachusetts; Arthur Cordes, Route 1; Wallace Cordes, Route 1; Rolla Cordes, 2013 East Seventh; Clay Cordes, 1935 East Seventh; one brother, Fred Riecke, Iowa City, Iowa; and three grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Thursday at the Heckart-Gillespie Funeral Home with Rev. Denis Craft, pastor of the First United Methodist Church, officiating.

Burial will be in Crown Hill Cemetery.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

Charles Henry Brunkhorst

FLORENCE — Charles Henry Brunkhorst, 92, lifelong resident here, died at his home near here at 10:15 p.m. Monday.

Mr. Brunkhorst was born near Florence, Jan. 31, 1880, son of the late John and Caroline Cordes Brunkhorst.

He was engaged in farming in the Florence community most of his life.

He married Miss Lillian Emmojean Sanders in Morgan County Nov. 18, 1903, and she died Feb. 7, 1947.

Mr. Brunkhorst was a member of the Bethlehem Baptist Church.

Surviving are two sons, Dennis Brunkhorst, Star Route, Florence; Dr. Glenn Brunkhorst, Colorado Springs, Colo.; one daughter, Mrs. Ralph (Ruth) Lewis, Columbia; one brother, Otto Brunkhorst, Syracuse; two sisters, Miss Ada Brunkhorst and Miss Lettye Brunkhorst, both of Florence; six grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at the Ewing Funeral Home at 2 p.m. Thursday. The Rev. August Williams, pastor of the Aurora Springs Baptist Church, Eldon, will officiate.

Burial will be in the Bethlehem Cemetery.

The body is at the funeral home where the family will receive friends from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday.

New Funds Are Used By Schools

Spokesmen for Sedalia's three parochial schools, the recent beneficiaries of a state decision permitting them to receive tax-supplied school textbooks funds, have all put the money to use, spokesmen said Tuesday.

At all three schools, the recently-authorized money is being used to pay for new books purchased at the beginning of the school year. No additional purchases have been made since the ruling was made.

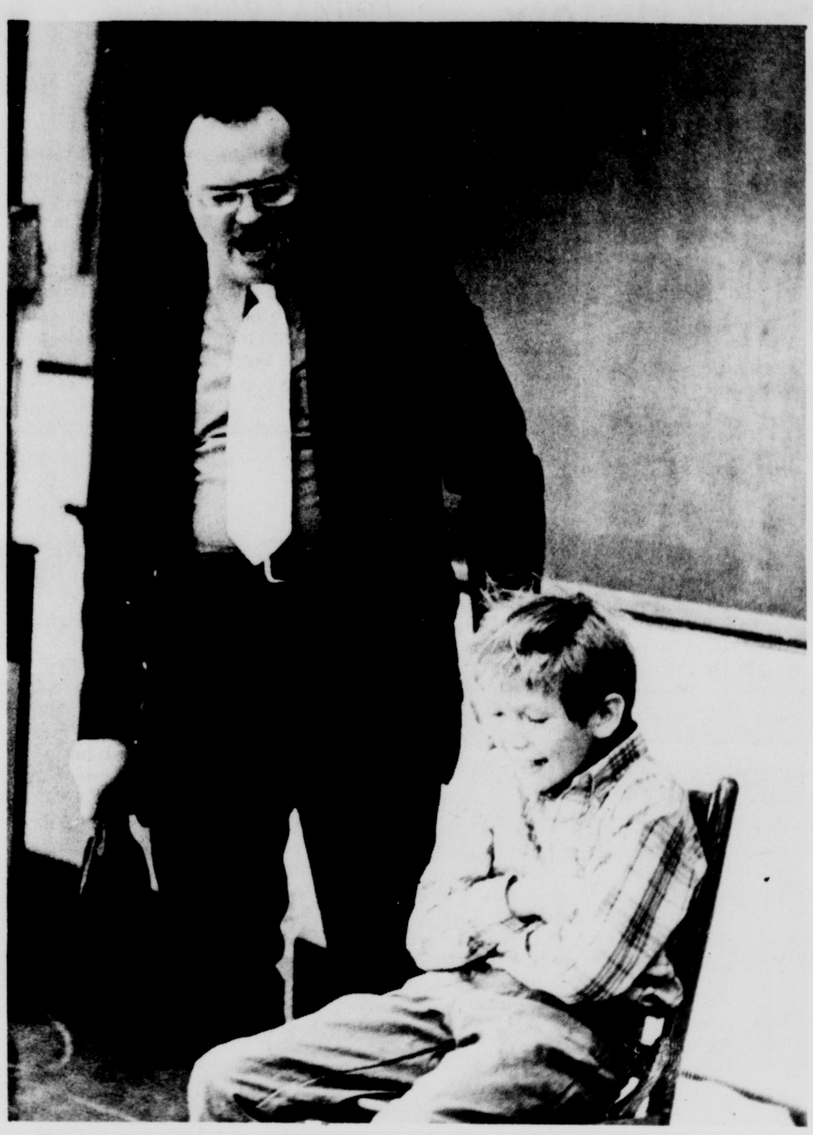

William Lehman, Sacred Heart principal, said students at the schools are currently using approximately $4,000 worth of new textbooks paid for with the funds.

Lehman added that the textbooks are stamped "Sedalia Public Schools" because they are actually owned by the Sedalia School District 200 and are technically only on loan to the parochial schools.

Lee Schluckebier, principal at St. Paul's Lutheran School, said he turned over unpaid textbook bills totaling $787 to Sedalia school authorities.

"I really appreciate all the cooperation that I have received from them (the school officials) and Mr. Sillers in particular," he said. P. A. Sillers, director of elementary education for Sedalia Schools, has been a major liason between the parochial and public schools in conducting textbook payment procedures.

A spokesman for Faith Christian School said school officials there have spent approximately $350 to "pay off outstanding bills" on textbooks already being used in the school.

Operatic Debut

John Russell, 10, a fourth grader at Sacred Heart School, registers some embarrassment as he is being sung to by Brian Steele of Young Audiences, Inc., a group of professional performers who sing and talk to children of various schools in a program designed to help them understand and appreciate music. John, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Russell, 234 South Moniteau, participated in an operatic skit as part of the program to bring a better understanding of opera to the students.

Concession Facility Is Planned

In its regular monthly meeting Monday night, the Sedalia Park and Recreation Board examined preliminary drawings of a proposed concession-restroom facility for Centennial Park, submitted by Sammons and Buller, architects.

According to Jack Couts, superintendent of parks, the structure will be located just west of New York between the Little League and Babe Ruth Baseball diamonds. Couts added he hopes to be able to repair the present concession stand and transport it to Housel Park for use there.

The proposed structure provides for a concession area with storage space on one end, restrooms in the middle and a large storage area to house park equipment on another end. The building will have skylights, according to Couts, who said the skylights would conserve electricity during daylight hours.

The board also decided to heat the structure with a forced air furnace to be placed in the storage room.

A letter from E. M. Allger of Allger-Martin, Joplin architects to Jim Grady, park board president, said the firm would move to correct several irregularities found at the Centennial Park Pool.

Among the irregularities included in Allger's letter were: (1) cracks in walks to be corrected by being cut open and filled with rubber compound; (2) cracks in the bathhouse to be cut open and filled with an epoxy compound; (3) a leaking joint between the vertical pool wall and the sidwalk, which will be cut open, the existing calking removed, and filled with rubber; (4) replace the metal yoke for the hair and lint catcher; (5) check the calibration of the rate of flow gauge and replace or adjust it and repair leaks in pipes.

All of this is an effort to bring the pool up to standards established by the Missouri Division of Health.

In further action, Couts announced the lobby of Convention Hall in Liberty Park will be closed to wrestling fans Tuesday evening until election results there are tabulated. Convention Hall is the official polling place for the First Ward, second precinct. He said wrestling events would take place as scheduled, with spectators entering by the north entrance.

Couts also requested and was granted permission to place speed blocks in the roadway of Liberty Park between the concession stand and the small children's playground. Speed blocks are humps designed to slow automobiles.

In other action, Grady told the board Councilman Carl Franklin had asked him recently about filling a vacancy created by the departure of H. Gail Hawkins. He suggested a woman might be named. Hawkins has moved away from Sedalia.

No action was taken. Appointments to the board require the approval of the mayor and City Council.

Republican strategists predicted Nixon would carry at least 45 of the 50 states.

In the closing hours of the campaign and into Election Day itself, Republicans continued radio commercials as they sought to combat apathy produced by Nixon's large lead in the polls.

TV Interviews Of Area Mayors

The mayors of Tipton, California, Hallsville, Clark and Sturgeon were interviewed last Friday by newsmen from KCBJ-TV, Channel 17 in Columbia, in order to obtain their views on political matters during an election year.

Among those interviewed were Mayor Henry Bass, Tipton, and Mayor Lloyd Donley, California. A spokesman for the television station said the over-all objective was to get the mayors' "thoughts in a campaign year and focus on public figures in small communities." He added, "We also wanted to let these people know that although they live in a small community, they are not forgotten."

The program was scheduled to be aired over Channel 17 Tuesday night.

An interview with Sedalia Mayor Jerry Jones was hoped for but later cancelled due to lack of time, it was reported.

Absentee Ballot Count Underway

County Clerk Mrs. Mary Jane Wilson Tuesday said 1,091 absentee ballots and 174 war ballots were counted Tuesday by election officials. The deadline for absentee ballots to be delivered to her office personally was 4 p.m. Monday. The deadline for mailed applications was 4 p.m. Friday.

The total number of 1,265 absentee and war ballots cast, although not approaching Mrs. Wilson's forecast of 1,500, marked an increase of 71 over the 1,194 counted in 1968.

Although saying "the counting is going along pretty well," Mrs. Wilson made no specific prediction when the results of the absentee ballot count would be known. She did say, however, "it took us to 6 p.m. to count the absentees in the primary and we have more this time so it will probably be later in the evening."

Man Takes Vodka And Sleeping Pills

Police were summoned to Bothwell Hospital around 5:10 p.m. Monday to help the Rev. Leroy Hayes, director of Beacon In the Night, restrain Jerry Meyers, 25, Florence.

According to police reports Meyer had reportedly taken an overdose of sleeping pills and ½-pint of vodka and Hayes was attempting to keep him at the hospital until he could be attended by a physician.

Hospital spokesmen Monday night said Meyers had been treated and released.

Firemen Battle $1,500 Blaze Here

Nine Sedalia firefighters responded to a house fire at 11:31 p.m. Monday at the Maggie Johnson residence, 217 East Pettis. No injuries were reported.

The fire caused an estimated $1,500 damage to the building and contents. Firemen were at the scene of the blaze for 1½ hours, officials said.

According to firefighter Robert Vogler, the fire, of undetermined origin, burned a wall in a room at the front of the house and also damaged the attic and roof. Also reported damaged were a bed and other furnishings.

A fire report said the house is owned by Nathaniel Hawkins.

Estimate Damage

An estimated $93 in damage and loss were attributed to two thefts and an act of vandalism Monday and Tuesday, Sedalia police reported.

Leo Holman, 1421 West 10th, reported the theft of a jacket valued at $15 from the Ramada Inn. Holman said the jacket was noticed missing Oct. 21.

A soft drink machine at the Broadway Car Wash, 310 West Broadway, sustained an estimated $25 damage, police said, after it had been the object of an attempted break-in. Entry into the money box of the machine was not gained, authorities said.

David Wayne Silvey, Route 3, reported the theft of the gas tank cap from his motorcycle. Police reported the cap, valued at $3, was stolen from the vehicle while it was parked in the 400 block of West Second between 4:30 and 7:56 p.m. Monday.

A tire on an automobile owned by Ron Pummill, 1703 South Grand, was reported slashed between 4 and 10 p.m. Sunday while the vehicle was parked at the Rival Manufacturing Co. parking lot, near 16th and Lamine. Damage was estimated at $50.

Chain Saws Valued At $1,500 Stolen

OTTERVILLE — A total of eight chain saws valued at $1,500 were stolen late Monday night from Otten's Texaco Station, on east Highway 50 here, Pettis County Sheriff Emmett Fairfax said.

A spokesman for the station said the saws were taken from the office of the station. Entry was gained by breaking a window at the rear of the building.

Cooper County Sheriff's officers are investigating the theft.

Missouri's

focused on the governor's race between Republican state auditor Christopher S. "Kit" Bond and Democrat Edward L. Dowd.

Bond, 33, hopes to become the state's first Republican governor since Gov. Forrest C. Donnell, now 88, left office in 1945.

He has campaigned for change, criticizing patronage hiring and what he calls the "Democratic spoils system."

Bond was scheduled to close out his campaign today in Joplin, Kansas City and St. Joseph before voting at 2:30 p.m. in Mexico.

Jones Takes Issue With Advertisement

Sedalia's Republican Mayor Jerry Jones said Monday evening that an alleged quotation of GOP gubernatorial hopeful Christopher "Kit" Bond in an advertisement Monday's Democrat and today's Capital "is completely false."

Jones referred to the Democratic advertisement on page seven which quotes Bond as saying he would eliminate the Missouri State Fair.

The mayor said he had checked with Bond's campaign headquarters concerning the ad. He noted that Bond has never said anything beyond an opinion that the fair should be a self-sustaining operation. Jones also said the same opinion is held by the current state administration.

Council

$8,760. Also, the council approved the purchase of two lots adjacent to the west edge of Centennial Park from Ron Stith, Springfield, for $200.

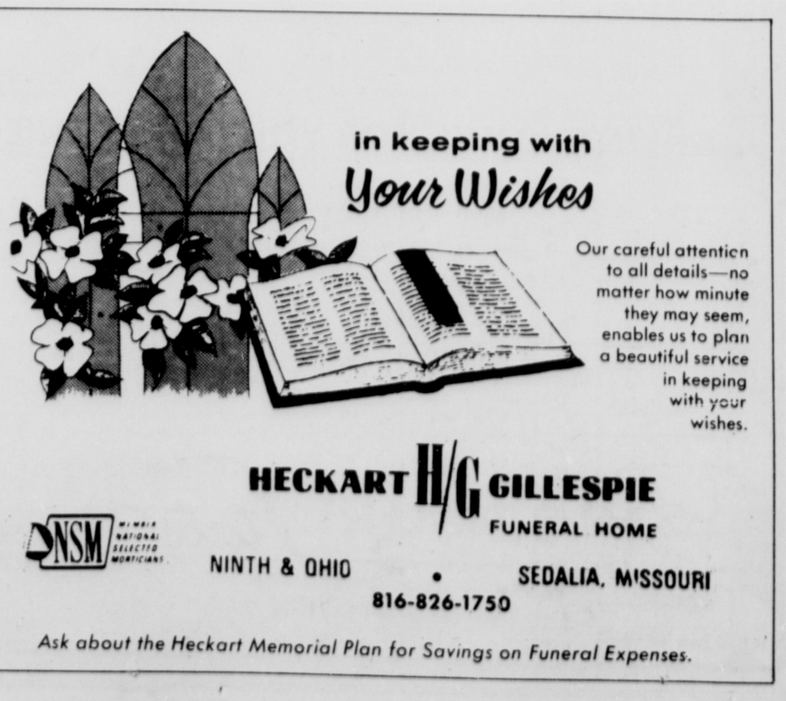

Howard Roberts was approved to serve out an unexpired term on the Sedalia Housing Authority. Also, the resignation of fireman Melvin Massey was accepted and James D. Wagner was approved as a new fireman. It was learned that Wagner, who currently lives outside the city limits, is planning to move into Sedalia.

Bids were taken on salt and calcium chloride; radio equipment for the police and fire departments and the poundmaster; on a truck chassis; on office furniture for the new city hall and on life insurance.

License renewals were granted to James K. Kretzer, 3.2 per cent beer at the Pizza Hut; Central Distributing Co., wholesale beer; Russell Biggs, liquor by the drink, 117 West Main; and Richard Esser, packaged liquor, Main and Missouri.

A conditional renewal license for packaged liquor was granted Edward Steidley, 3312 South Limit. Steidley, who has only recently moved to Sedalia, was granted the license on the condition that he register as a voter within 10 days after registration books are reopened. One of the requirements for having a liquor license is being a registered voter.

The council had a 12-minute executive session immediately prior to the regular council meeting. The reason for the meeting was not disclosed.

County road toll continues to climb

In an editorial last May, we took note of the already alarming number of traffic deaths in the county for the year, and expressed the fear that Pettis County would finish out 1972 with a tragic safety record unless the trend was halted.

As it turned out, it was one prediction that proved true. We would have much preferred to report that it hadn't.

On Saturday night four young men, three of them from Sedalia, were killed in a one-car accident on a rural road northeast of Sedalia. Their deaths brought the Pettis County traffic toll to 17 for the year to date.

This is one short of being twice the number killed in all of last year, and is already the highest number of deaths for the last four years.

For the state as a whole, the picture also is alarming. Missouri Highway Safety Reporter figures show that 1,069 persons had been killed in the state as of Sept. 30, which is 13 more than the same period last year.

With major holidays yet to come this year, the totals are sure to rise. Will the nation's annual traffic death total (about 60,000 persons) exact more lives from Pettis County, or have we met our quota for the year?

We have become so inured to statistics that they have little effect any longer. Sometimes, although it is not a pretty thought, it takes the tragic shock of a news story and picture to drive home to us how efficient an instrument of death the automobile can be, if not properly respected.

The lives of four young men were snuffed out in an instant in Saturday night's crash. To their families and loved ones we can offer only our sympathies, and, in part, share their sense of loss.

To the living, we would only say again, and again, and again: Slow down.

A new twist to amnesty dispute

WASHINGTON — One of the hottest emotional words being bandied about these days is "amnesty." Both President Nixon and Vice President Agnew have vowed never to give amnesty to those who refused to go and fight for freedom in Vietnam. But amnesty means all things to all people.

Buchwald

Cedric Farfinkle, an acquaintance by marriage, told me, "I am against amnesty for anyone who got us involved in Vietnam."

"That's rather harsh, Cedric."

"Nevertheless, there is no reason to forgive anyone who cost this country 45,000 lives and $150 billion."

"Christian charity says you should forgive people after a war is over," I protested.

"These men knew what they were doing. They had a choice, and without consulting Congress or anyone, they got us in the war. There should be a public stigma applied to them. They shouldn't be allowed to go off to teach at Harvard, head up banks and law firms and write books without some kind of punishment," Farfinkle said.

"That's easy for you to say. These men had the choice of going into Vietnam or staying out of it," I said. "The fact that they chose to go in is to their credit. They may have violated the law, but sometimes you have to put your conscience above the law."

"You're talking like a bleeding heart," Farfinkle said. "Suppose we forgave everybody who got us into a war. How would that look to the young people of this country?"

"I may be a bleeding heart, Farfinkle," I said, "but I still believe that no matter what a man did during a war he should not have to carry it around with him the rest of his life."

"I'm not asking for a blanket punishment for all the people who got us into this war," Farfinkle said. "I think each case should be taken on its own merits. There are probably some people who can prove extenuating circumstances, and we might forgive them after a hearing. But what I say is that granting general amnesty for all the men responsible for getting us into this war would be a travesty of justice and would demean the great number of people who have fought for 10 years to get us out."

"Everyone makes mistakes," I cried. "Just because a man did what he felt was the right thing at the time does not make his guilty of a war crime."

"Maybe so," Farfinkle said, "but I don't think these warmakers should be allowed to just come back and take up their lives where they left off. Perhaps at some future date, after all the emotions have calmed down, some President might pardon them. But for now they should be made to pay the price for their actions. If we grant amnesty, they won't even realize they did anything wrong."

I was getting discouraged. "Every country in the world forgives the people who start a war once the peace agreement is signed. Without that, no one would have faith in his leaders."

"No amnesty," Farfinkle said.

"What kind of punishment would you propose for those who got us into and kept us in the war?"

"I would forbid them to vote or hold public office. I would also make them serve for two years in some government peace organization to prove they've had a change of mind."

"But, Farfinkle," I said, "what you're proposing to do would punish the cream of the American Establishment. If given amnesty, some of these men may turn out to be fine, upstanding citizens."

"They're going to have to go some," Farfinkle said, "to prove it to me."

A conservative view

Bread, butter on top

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — David Lawrence, the columnist who is dean of us all, long has cherished a theory that in the absence of some overriding concern, such as the war in 1940, presidential elections will be decided largely on one issue only: the pocketbook issue.

Kilpatrick

That theory is soundly buttressed in a little monograph that turned up recently in the mail: "On Measuring the Response of American Voters to Changes in Economic Conditions, 1792-1972," by Thomas Senior Berry of Richmond, Va. Berry is an associate professor of economics at University College of the University of Richmond. His particular interest lies in economic history.

Several years ago Berry began feeding great mounds of early American economic statistics into a computer. His purpose was to come up with figures that might provide a reliable index to Gross National Product in the 19th century. A couple of months ago, chiefly for the fun of it, he began correlating his GNP estimates to presidential elections. His cheerful and unpedantic monograph is the result.

Berry developed six economic classifications for presidential years, based upon the average change in the GNP in the two preceding years: boom, brisk, good, fair, poor, and bust. He found an absolute correlation at both extremes. In the boom and brisk years, the party in power always won; in the poor and bust years, the party in power always lost. In those years that were merely good or fair, other considerations tended to dominate the electoral process.

What about the 1972 election? Berry estimates a growth rate of 12.26 per cent in the GNP this year. This moves 1972 out of the classification of "good" years and into the classification of "brisk." If his calculations are correct, based upon 16 re-election campaigns since 1828, Nixon should romp home with somewhere between 72 and 74 per cent of the electoral vote, and 54 per cent of the popular vote.

Berry came up with these projections more than a month ago. In the fashion of prudent editorial writers, he was careful to put in a few qualifications. "Three things," he said, "could occur to boost Nixon's share of the vote: an improvement in conditions, a good campaign on his part, or a poor campaign by his opponent. Similarly, a sudden and sharp deterioration of conditions, a poor campaign by the Republicans, or an especially good campaign by McGovern would tend to detract from the Republican margin of victory. And if these tendencies went to an extreme Nixon could lose, though the odds are heavily against it."

Economic conditions have continued gradually to improve in recent months; Nixon has run a poor campaign, but McGovern has been no ball of fire. Berry's projection looks solid to me.

A correspondent who travels the campaign trail needs no computer to venture the same impressions. The American people, by and large, are not deeply interested in the things we pundits think they ought to be interested in: the war, foreign policy, civil liberties, the recasting of priorities in terms of federal spending. No, indeed. They are interested in their own everyday lives. Are they getting along okay? This is the ultimate test.

Statistics, as such, are wasted on most voters. It simply doesn't matter, in the ordinary view, that the unemployment rate is 5.5 per cent, or whatever the rate may be. If somebody else has troubles, tough; but the typical head of a household is working, his income is rising, and he's meeting the installments on his car. If he thinks at all of the GNP, he thinks it's the Russian secret service.

Holding Pattern

Merry-go-round

Both candidates' images distorted

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Political campaigns, like the comic mirrors at the amusement park, often distort a candidate's image.

I have known Richard Nixon and George McGovern, for example, since they were obscure congressmen fresh from the hustings. Neither is what he appears to the public to be.

Several bruising campaigns have given Nixon the image of a cold and crass and calculating politician without compassion. He is not like this at all.

The real Nixon, as a 23-year-old law student at Duke University, used to carry a crippled classmate up two flights of stairs. The classmate, Frederick Cady, had been deformed and dwarfed by polio at age 9. Four schoolmates told my associate, Les Whitten, they remembered young Nixon regularly lugging Cady up the stairs of their boarding house. Some recall that Nixon carried the student in his arms; others remembered that Nixon and another classmate locked arms and formed a cradle to lift Cady.

The real Nixon is a warm, rather shy, basically decent human being. He put a black medical student and a black architectural student through college without their knowing that their tuition and expenses had been paid by the President of the United States. Only a few intimates, among them our source, were ever aware of this vary private charity by a very private Richard Nixon.

The President also has the image of a politician who puts politics ahead of principle. On the contrary, the real Nixon is a patriot who would sacrifice his tremendous political ambition for the sake of his country. He demonstrated this in 1960 after he lost a close election to John F. Kennedy. The Republicans began gathering evidence of massive election frauds in Illinois and Indiana — evidence that could have thrown the election into the courts. The partisans around Nixon urged him to challenge the election.

When he called upon Kennedy to pay his respects, Kennedy said: "Well, I guess the outcome is in doubt."

"No," said Nixon. "The outcome is not in doubt. You are the winner."

His biographer and close friend, Earl Mazo, had researched a series of 12 stories on the election frauds. Nixon made a personal appeal to him to stop the series. The defeated presidential candidate explained quietly that he would not be a party to creating a constitutional crisis for the United States.

For the ambitious Richard Nixon, this was a sacrifice second only to giving his life. He was willing to lay down his political life in 1960 for his country.

★ ★ ★

George McGovern, likewise, has come out of the campaign with a warped image. He has been portrayed as a political radical who can't make up his mind. The truth is that no one in politics has been more consistent than McGovern.

At age 24, he denounced those who placed "military pride" above "human life," who put "financial return" ahead of "human welfare." He has never, in all his political career, deviated from this theme. If he has changed his position on the details, he has never wavered in principle.

Indeed, McGovern is such a thoroughly decent and compassionate man that it sometimes hurts him politically. When Tom Eagleton's psychiatric problems first came to light, aides say that, to their astonishment and dismay, McGovern was more concerned over the effects of the disclosure upon Eagleton than upon his own campaign. They had to use all their powers of persuasion to get McGovern to drop Eagleton. The long agonizing, meanwhile, was politically disastrous for McGovern.

Even now, aides have told us, McGovern is still withholding aspects of the Eagleton story that would help him out of concern that it might hurt his former running mate. Incredible as this may sound, one confidant swears McGovern "is almost saintly" when it comes to putting human considerations ahead of his own political ambitions.

I know the fundamental decency of George McGovern. I have seen his eyes grow misty over the problems of others. Rare among politicians, he has always been as open as the skies over his native South Dakota. This inability to deceive has made him an awkward politician when he gives in to his advisers and tries to play pragmatic politics.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

After a civil war or revolution, an act of amnesty is usually granted by the victorious side with a promise of immunity from prosecution if the defeated side abandoned its unlawful activities. Following the American Civil War, Congress passed an Amnesty Act on May 22, 1872, which restored civil rights to all citizens of the South except its former Confederate leaders, The World Almanac recalls.

Editor's mail

'Hatchet Act' used

I read your recent article on Mr. Erwin Rumpf and his problems surrounding his appointment as state chairman of Farmers For McGovern. I found myself somewhat amazed and confused. I have heard of the Hatch Act before, but I didn't realize the power it has.

My first reaction was to say that it was unconstitutional. But surely it has been challenged in court, so I guess it is legal. But is it fair? High officials in Washington that are paid by the taxpayers are going around the country speaking for the election of President Nixon. Why can they do this while Mr. Rumpf is punished for speaking for Senator McGovern? I have even read accounts about the FBI doing campaign work for President Nixon.

This is clearly a double standard. The Hatch Act should be called the Hatchet Act. Whoever holds the hatchet at the time gets to use its power or not use it, depending on if the violator is disobeying the law for the right candidate. Is this what law and order means?

McGovern Flies Home To Await the Verdict

By JOHN LUNDQUIST
Associated Press Writer

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (AP) – Sen. George McGovern, expressing optimism, despite political polls that showed him far behind President Nixon, was back home Tuesday to cast his vote and await the nation's verdict.

The Democratic presidential nominee was to vote Tuesday at the Congregational church in Mitchell, S.D., a town of 12,700 persons, 50 miles west of Sioux Falls.

McGovern also was scheduled to speak in Mitchell at Dakota Wesleyan University, where he formerly taught.

Later, the senator was to return to his hotel headquarters in Sioux Falls to await the outcome of Tuesday's voting. His backers planned what they confidently believed would be a victory rally, despite the latest national polls showing McGovern trailing President Nixon by 24 to 26 percentage points.

The 50-year-old minister's son, who traveled more than 200,000 miles the past 3½ months while his Republican rival kept close to the White House much of that time, stepped up the tempo of his attacks on Nixon as election day arrived.

He flew from New York to Long Beach, Calif., with stops at Philadelphia, Pa., and Wichita, Kan., Monday.

"I believe we want, and indeed must have, a president who will summon this nation to a higher standard, and rekindle the American promise," he said in Philadelphia.

It was typical of the appeal he had made to fellow Americans as the candidate of "compassionate concern" opposing the Nixon of what he called special interests and corruption, deceit and—McGovern maintained throughout—who promised but didn't end the Vietnam war in four years.

McGovern told voters at Long Beach, Calif., Monday night that when they go to the polls "you're going to be in there with your conscience." He told aides and newsmen later he hoped voters would experience a "spiritual seizure" while in the voting booths.

As he had so often in the campaign, he attacked Nixon's war policies:

"We see now before us a record of deceit and deception on Vietnam that has ended with the worst deception of all, not a peace in the name of humanity, but a hoax for the sake of politics."

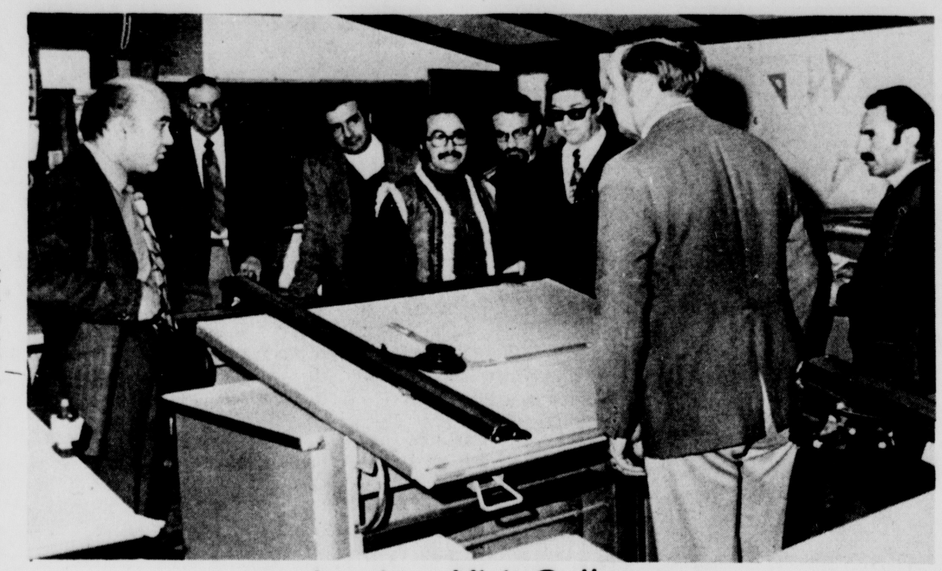

In Philadelphia, he told a rally of several thousand persons that he believes he will win. "I believe we are going to prevail. Thank God and bless you all," he said.

He said he has learned a lot from Americans during the campaign.

"I've found that they still care about each other," he said. "I've found that most Americans want their government and want their families and want their leaders to do what is right. I've seen faces in towns all across this country that literally glow with hope for the American future."

Airbound Candidate Is Blitzed

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Republican Dave Owen had it all mapped out — a last minute blitz campaign Monday, including the Wichita area as he concluded his drive for the Kansas lieutenant governor's office.

But instead of spending the day campaigning in the state, he spent it flying over and around it — 13 hours to be exact.

Owen wanted to fly to Wichita to start the day. Bad weather grounded his private plane, so he caught a commercial flight. That was diverted to Oklahoma City.

There he was advised to try making connections at Dallas to get back to Kansas City. It was afternoon when he left Dallas, but that plane couldn't land at Kansas City and had to land in Chicago.

Owen finally caught a flight back into Kansas City late Monday — too late for further campaigning.

But at least he got back in time to vote Tuesday.

Ballot Delivery Effort Is Special

LITTLE DIOMEDE, Alaska (AP) — It took a special parachute drop to deliver ballots to this tiny Bering Sea island, a rocky outpost of democracy in the shadow of Siberia. Before the island's official returns are in, the next president may be settled in office.

Despite the hardships, Alaska election officials expect a 100 per cent turnout today among the village's 37 registered voters.

Little Diomede Island, so rocky the houses are built on stilts, has no room for an airstrip. And it is virtually cut off from the outside world in late fall and spring when the mushy Bering Sea ice won't support a temporary airfield. There also is too much ice for a boat to cut through.

As is the custom here, election officials chartered a bush plane recently to drop a well-wrapped bundle of ballots, marked by bright red streamers, to the Eskimo village of about 100 persons.

The twin-engine plane straddled the International Dateline, separating today from yesterday, to make the drop after three approaches under the watchful eye of a Soviet garrison on Russian Big Diomede Island, three miles away.

The charter flight from Nome, about 100 miles away on Alaska's west coast, cost $175 — nearly $5 per voter. But Mrs. JoAnn Harhut, election supervisor in Nome, believes the extra effort is worthwhile, pointing with pride to the fact that every single eligible voter had registered as of last month.

But she says retrieving the ballots, as usual, will have to wait until winter sets in, although the unofficial results will be radioed to her office.

"This is always a problem," she said. "We won't be able to get them until December or January when the ice freezes over and a plane can land."

It could be, then, that the votes here won't be counted officially until after the next president is inaugurated next Jan. 20.

This fluke in the back eddy of a technological age that will forecast a presidential victor before Little Diomede's polls are closed apparently hasn't discouraged the villagers. Nearly every man, woman and child turned out to wave and cheer when the ballots were dropped.

Raise Strawberry Arguments Again

Dear Ann Landers: You demonstrated a surprising lack of understanding and imagination when you praised the mother who refused to give her child the strawberries off her shortcake. When the child asked, "Can I have your strawberries, Mom, because I love them so much," the mother replied, "I like strawberries, too, and I'm going to eat them myself."

You commended that mother for not caving in and you added, "Too many kids think they should have everything they see and ask for. Parents who cater to the whims of their children do them no favor."

A much better way of handling the situation, in my opinion, would have been for the mother to say, "I like strawberries, too, dear, but I will share mine with you and the next time we have strawberries you will share yours with me." Agreed?

The child would not only have been pleased but he would have learned the satisfaction that comes from sharing. The mother's approach, which you applauded, was a complete shutout. — Also From Chicago.

Dear Chic: It was indeed a complete shutout, and that's what I liked about it. The notion that parents must always compromise to save a child's feelings is for the birds. There are many ways a child can learn to share, but this was an excellent opportunity to teach the child who "loved strawberries" that other people also love strawberries, and it's not fair to ask someone to settle for NO strawberries so he can have twice as many.

Dear Ann Landers: My mother taught me it is bad manners to look into other people's windows. I've grown up believing this is an invasion of privacy and in poor taste.

Here's the problem: We have a large bay window in our living room and I love to let the sunshine stream in, so I seldom pull my draperies. A dear neighbor of ours (and I am sincere when I say she is a lovely, fine person) has a habit of looking into that bay window to see if it is OK before she rings the bell.

For the life of me I can't understand what she is looking for. She would be welcome any time, and I mean that. Her habitual peering into my window really undoes me. Occasionally I look out and see her there, shading her eyes with her hands, and I become upset. I'm sure she believes she is being considerate but I feel it is terribly rude. Please don't tell me to tell her. I can't. Any other suggestions? — Love My Neighbor In Miami

Dear Love: OK. Don't TELL her. ASK her. Sample language: "What are you looking for? Please don't feel that you need to check to see if it's all right to ring the bell. You are welcome any time."

———

Dear Ann Landers: I was watching a game show on TV recently and the following information was presented as fact:

(1) An egg faints before it is cracked.

(2) A healthy egg will get nervous if it is placed next to a cracked egg.

Can these statements be true? I have been unable to eat an egg ever since I heard these unsettling statements. Thanks, Ann. — Barnyard Blues

Dear Barny: Those botanists who talk to flowers might have influenced some egg farmers. I've checked with my eggsperts (sorry about that) and they say go ahead and eat eggs again. They have not been able to locate any nervous eggs in Iowa, Illinois, Minnesota or Nebraska.

Reports Operation

Shirley Temple Black, former child movie star, disclosed Monday that she has undergone surgery for removal of a breast cancer. Mrs. Black is shown recovering at the Stanford Medical Center in Stanford, Calif., where she had the operation last Friday.

(UPI)

Mrs. Black Urges Women To Heed Cancer Symptoms

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Former child star Shirley Temple Black, who has had a cancerous breast removed, is urging all women to "go to their doctors for diagnosis when they have unusual symptoms."

"I am grateful to God, my family and my doctors for the successful outcome of this operation because I have much to accomplish," Mrs. Black, 44, said Monday.

Stanford Hospital announced that the mastectomy was performed last week by Dr. Fred Shidler, who said the operation succeeded in removing all traces of malignancy. Mrs. Black, he said, will remain in the hospital indefinitely.

"It is my fervent hope," she said, "that women will not be afraid to go to their doctors for diagnosis when they have unusual symptoms. There is almost certain recovery from this form of cancer if it is caught early enough."

Mrs. Black lives with her businessman husband Charles Black and their three children in suburban Woodside.

A Republican, Mrs. Black lost a race for Congress in 1967 to Rep. Paul N. "Pete" McCloskey. President Nixon appointed her U.S. representative to the United Nations in 1969, and she recently spoke on tour as special assistant to the chairman of the President's Council on Environmental Quality.

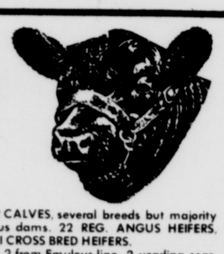

In the past few years, Mrs. Black became more and more ambitious to serve in government. She had made a million dollars by the time she was 12, and she was determined to prove her ability on a different kind of stage.

As a juvenile star, Shirley Temple performed in some 35 films that made her the most beloved child actress in the country. She starred in such movies as "Heidi," "Little Miss Marker" and "Good Ship Lollypop."

In 1967, as a married woman, mother and busy backstage Republican worker in California's 11th district in San Mateo County, her interest in politics prompted her to try for Congress.

Decalcification — Spinal Hump

Dear Dr. Lamb — Does decalcification of the spine which often occurs after menopause cause dowager's hump? What can be done to prevent this besides increased calcium intake? Are posture exercises beneficial?

Dear Reader — Yes, after the change in life calcium is withdrawn from the spine and the body of the vertabrae lose size, some may even collapse. This is responsible for the change in the spine that you mention. To reduce the likelihood of having this, women should be certain that they get at least the same amount of calcium found in one quart of milk each day. This can be gotten by using skim milk to avoid the fat content of whole milk if one desires to do this or it can be gotten from the nonfat dry milk powder products which can be used in increased amounts in cooking. Finally, calcium tablets can be taken just as is commonly done during pregnancy to prevent a woman from having a calcium deficiency.

In addition, a number of doctors feel that at the change of life a woman should have some replacements of her female hormones, particularly if there is evidence on testing that there is a female hormone deficiency. There is some evidence that this will help to prevent these changes.

Postural exercises are great and women should concentrate on exercises that help strengthen the muscles in their spine. This includes such things as back bends, any of the trapeze-type exercises in which one is hanging by the arms and any of the exercises that strengthen all of the back and abdominal muscles.

These efforts should begin before changes in the spine are noticed. It is easier to prevent these changes than it is to do anything about them once they have started to occur — although the process may be slowed down with calcium and sometimes hormone therapy and proper exercise.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am getting concerned and a little embarrassed about my prominent nose turning red. Is the blood circulation bad because of wearing glasses? One connects red noses with people who consume much alcohol, but having three or four drinks a week really isn't much, or is it? Most of the time it turns red when I am warm or it itches. Please help me with an answer.

Dear Reader — The prominent red nose which you associate with drinking is more common in individuals who consume too much alcohol, but it does occur in a lot of people who don't drink at all. When the superficial blood vessels first start forming sometimes this problem can be corrected by using an electrical needle which literally coagulates the small superficial veins, arresting the condition. In more advanced cases considerable deformity of the nose can occur which may even require plastic surgery for cosmetic purposes.

There is a general tendency for increased vascularity of the nose with increasing age even in those who drink no alcohol. I don't think your wearing glasses has anything to do with the problem.

Judge in Court— Answers Charges

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A St. Louis judge appeared in court Monday, not to hear a case but rather to answer charges.

City Court Judge Nathan B. Young showed up in the court of Criminal Corrections to answer charges of traffic ticket fixing in the city courts. Young and two deputy marshals were indicted on charges of neglect of duty by a St. Louis Circuit Court grand jury. The three were given a continuance in their arraignment until Dec. 6.

Young has been granted a leave of absence as city court judge. He is charged in 15 counts of neglect of duty in that he allegedly failed to have traffic defendants enter their pleas in open court.

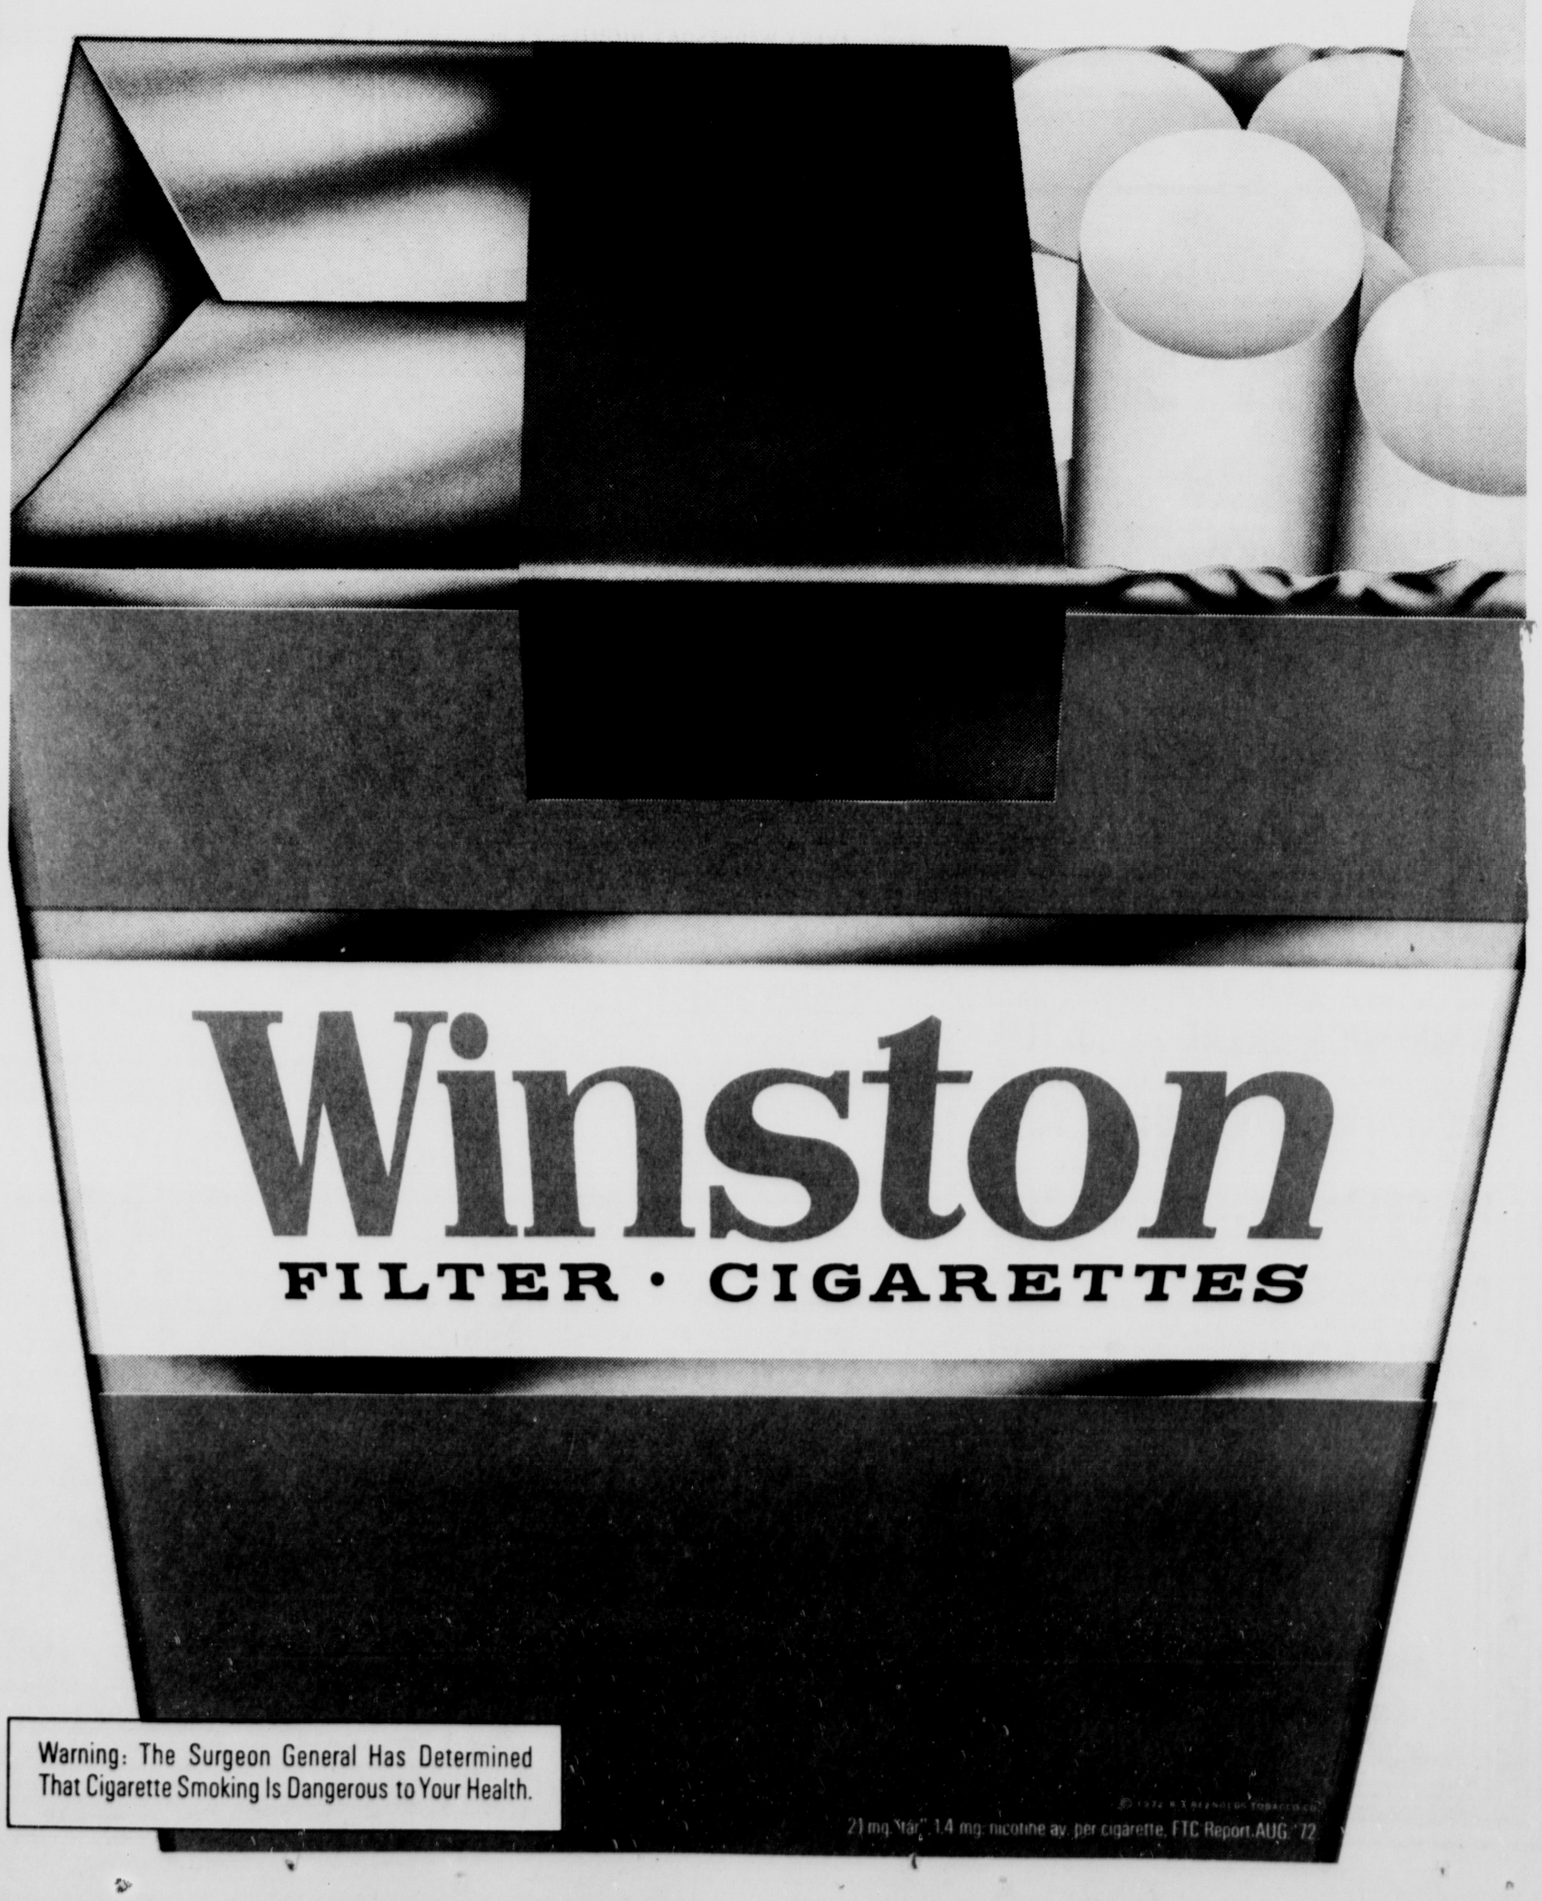

The courtroom where Judge Young appeared Monday is only 30 paces away from his own courtroom.

Nixon Has Been Known To Speak Softly But Carries a Big Stick

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, instinctively, is the kind of man who speaks softly. But he has often been known to carry a big stick.

The notion of speaking softly and carrying a big stick goes back to an earlier Republican president, Theodore Roosevelt, who took office in 1901.

Nixon is not exactly a turn-of-the-century man, however. Within recent months, he has built at least a fragile bridge to mainland China and has begun a process that, hopefully, will lead to a limitation of nuclear arms, East and West—and possibly, if the cards come up right, all the way east to Oriental China.

Apart from being separated by 68 years in taking office, there are other differences, too, between Nixon and the first President Roosevelt. In 1901, Americans thrilled to Roosevelt's bombastic rhetoric. Nixon—or was it the Old Nixon?—once was equally vehement. President Nixon prefers a lower-key style.

Another interesting point of comparison between Nixon and the first Roosevelt is their differing approaches to bastions of entrenched wealth.

Teddy Roosevelt made a place for himself in history by attacking what he termed "vested interests" and went to court to break up big corporations through newly authorized antitrust suits.

Nixon, to date, matches in no way Roosevelt's reputation as a trust-buster. In fact, his political foes say he is much too kind to big business.

Nevertheless, Nixon is proceeding, according to a preelection announcement, with what could be the most important antitrust suit in decades, against International Business Machines Corp., the super-organized outfit most Americans know simply as IBM.

With Nixon, the soft word and the big stick seem to be ever-present, especially where America's overseas interests are concerned.

Nixon was rather strained in his language in August 1971 when he imposed an import surcharge, froze wages and prices and, for the first time in nearly four decades, decreed that Uncle Sam no longer would eat dollars piling up in foreign treasuries at the rate of $35 for an ounce of gold.

The President did inveigh against those he cast as foreign predators. But one can only imagine what Theodore Roosevelt, in a much burlier age, would have said.

In the end, the dollar was devalued, a bold step by any historic measure. Yet talk persists that a further devaluation may be necessary during the next four years.

★ ★ ★

Nixon and Roosevelt, it might appear, would find closest kinship in confronting situations in which they felt American interests abroad were threatened.

Roosevelt, the original big-stick man, probably became president only because he organized the unorganized "Rough Riders," and took them to Cuba to storm San Juan Hill during the Spanish-American War that, apparently, he equated with the crusades of earlier centuries.

One of Nixon's principal advisers says his boss is lavish in expending America's resources when resources may mean the difference between success and failure in executing a military decision involving Vietnam

One could easily imagine Teddy Roosevelt doing the much the same.

In even more ways, Nixon and T. R. might share a kinship. Roosevelt was the sickly youth who, through guts and determination, built himself into a robust man ready to tackle Spaniards in Cuba or Democrats at home. Nixon was the uncoordinated bench warmer at Whittier College football games but, through guts and determination, made it big in a much bigger league—even after registering seemingly insurmountable failures.

Perhaps Roosevelt's reputation for speaking softly is unwarranted. He was an extrovert who excelled in speaking his mind.

Nixon, basically, is a rather shy man. Seldom does he utter a sharp word in public—at least, recently—and associates say that in his most private councils he always is considerate of the feelings of others.

Still, he rarely seeks out give-and-take sessions with any outside his close circle of top associates and friends. As evidence, his four-year record puts him well below all recent presidents in holding news conferences.

Nixon seems most comfortable among old friends, notably Charles Gregory "Bebe" Rebozo, next-door neighbor in Key Biscayne, Fla. Ironically, Rebozo was well acquainted with former Democratic presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson.

In public, Nixon often seems awkward. During a speech, his gestures may not appear to mesh with his words. Newsmen who have followed him have noted that, while talking in public, the President tends to stand on his toes.

Presumably, this is evidence of an introverted man.

Nixon is not good at small talk. He does not relish what he seems to regards as a waste of time.

★ ★ ★

Even when the time comes—and it comes all too often for presidents—to make big decisions, Nixon would rather keep talk to a minimum.

He likes to get the pros and cons and range of options in writing, preferably bound up in a black looseleaf notebook he can take with him to his Camp David retreat near Thurmont, Md., or his homes in Key Biscayne or San Clemente, Calif.

Associates responsible for assisting Nixon in reaching policy decisions in both foreign and domestic realms agree the President likes to get his facts off the written page.

Formal Cabinet meetings have almost nothing to do with decision-making at the White House. Nixon holds them, first, because such sessions are traditional but, second, because he thinks they provide a mechanism for keeping the Cabinet team abreast of his thinking and administration policy.

The President does not like large meetings. The significance of any session he holds is almost certain to diminish as the number of participants increases.

John D. Ehrlichman, Nixon's chief domestic-policy coordinator, is frank to state about Cabinet meetings, "The President does not like to work in groups as large as that."

Ehrlichman feels that Nixon "works best off the written page."

Army Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., chief deputy to foreign-affairs adviser Henry A. Kissinger, agrees that Nixon is a reader. He says:

"In bringing himself up to snuff, he likes to read, not be briefed—not to waste the time."

The upshot is that Nixon, a methodical man, has his aides, foreign and domestic, package problems in black-bound notebooks so he can read about the issues, controversies and options at his leisure.

The result is that Nixon makes major decisions through a solitary process of reading and thinking—often at Camp David or in some other secluded setting like that, where voters could reasonably assume he might be loafing.

★ ★ ★

Nixon doesn't think much of loafing. He talks about the "work ethic." Its all apparently, presumably, of his upbringing as one son of a jack-of-all-trades father who somehow managed to feed, clothe and educate the younger Nixons during the depths of the greatest economic catastrophe that ever befell the United States.

Nixon helped work his way through Duke University Law School, after Whittier College, married a one-time movie starlet christened Thelma Patricia Ryan, worked for Uncle Sam in Washington administering price controls at the start of World War II, then got himself a spot as a very junior naval officer.

Nixon returned from the South Pacific war to run for Congress. How he made it is still a source of controversy among old-time liberal Democrats who remember Jerry Voorhis, beaten by Nixon in a 1946 House contest which Nixon critics describe as one of the dirtiest campaigns in California history.

Nixon was elected to the U.S. Senate in 1950 after an equally controversial race against Democrat Helen Gahagan Douglas.

A successful pursuit of Alger Hiss, accused of being a Communist spy while serving in the State Dapartment, but convicted only of perjury, lofted the ambitious Californian on his way to the vice presidency in 1952.

Nixon lost a presidential bid to John F. Kennedy in 1960, lost a bid for the governorship of California to Democrat Edmund G. Brown, the incumbent, in 1962—and in defeat uttered to newsmen angry words he has had frequent cause to regret: "You won't have Richard Nixon to kick around any more."

Condition Ruling On Hijack Suspect

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Martin J. McNally, 28, of Wyandotte, Mich., was termed mentally competent to stand trial Monday on charges of hijacking an American Airlines jet here June 23.

Judge John K. Regan in U.S. District Court ruled that McNally would be able to stand trial Dec. 4 on the basis of a report from a federal medical prison at Springfield, Mo., where he underwent a 90-day evaluation.

McNally was not psychotic at the time of the hijacking at Lambert-St. Louis International Airport, the report said. He was arrested in his suburban Detroit home shortly after the hijacking. The $502,500 in ransom which was given to the hijacker before he bailed out of the jet over northern Indiana, was found by a farmer near Peru, Ind.

Walter J. Petlikowsky, 31, of Ecorse, Mich., who has been charged as McNally's accomplice, will be given a separate trial.

Warsaw, Tigers, Mustangs Open With Victories

By VAUGHN HART
Sports Editor

LINCOLN — The seeded teams made their way through the opening round of the Kaysinger Tournament here Monday night. Second-seeded Warsaw pushed host Lincoln to the consolation bracket, 71-46; fourth-seeded Smithton dumped Cole Camp, 56-38; and eighth-seeded Northwest (Hughesville) topped Green Ridge, 49-33.

Smithton, who got 26 of their points from a pair of 6-4 junior front-liners, Rusty Templemire and Jay Teter, moved into the upper-bracket semifinal game against the winner of the Sedalia Sacred Heart-Green Ridge game, which is scheduled for tonight at 8:30 p.m.

Warsaw, who went into the dressing room with only a 30-17 lead and who had two of their key front-line players in foul trouble, gained a semifinal berth against the winner of the Stover-LaMonte game, which is also scheduled for tonight at 7 p.m.

Smithton spotted the Blue Birds a 10-4 lead early in the contest, before coming back in the second stanza to take the lead for good.

Cole Camp got in foul trouble early in the game as 6-2 senior Kent Schnakenberg picked up his fourth foul of the game as the first-period buzzer sounded. Schnakenberg had to take a seat on the bench, and when he did the Tigers found the going much easier inside, as Templemire and Teter keyed the attack at both ends of the court.

But that wasn't the half of it as the Blue Birds saw another one of their front-liners, 6-3 Harry Goosen, get whistled for his third personal foul with 3:26 to go in the first half.

That eased the Tigers' efforts inside even more as they managed a 25-20 lead at the intermission. Smithton pushed it to 41-26 by the end of the third period and virtually salted it away on a pair of Teter charity shots with 5:05 left in the contest, which gave the Bengals a 50-34 margin.

Templemire tossed in 18 points; Teter added eight more, while Paul Anderson chipped in 11.

Warsaw was able to use 6-6 center Doug Stevens only sparingly in their contest as he also fell victim of foul trouble, but Eddie Barnes picked up the slack at both ends of the court. Barnes, a 6-1 forward, tossed in 26 points, tops for all the opening-night's scorers. Barnes cleared both the offensive and defensive backboards and hit about as well outside as he did inside.

Barnes and Stevens each picked up three fouls in the opening half of play, while teammates Darrell Kinkead, Tim Hedrick and Scott Steffans picked up two apiece in the first two periods.

But it wasn't enough to slow them as they forged out a 30-17 margin by half time and made it 48-27 at the end of three periods.

Although Stevens played only about half the game, he managed to toss in 16 points. Hedrick also entered double figures with 10.

Ed Pickens, Lincoln's standout forward and the leading scorer in the conference a year ago, topped the Cardinals' effort with 20 points.

Shawn Barnes led the Mustangs' attack with 22 points as Northwest advanced to tonight's game against the top-seeded Gremlins. Northwest carved out an 18-9 advantage as the teams entered play in the second quarter and was never seriously threatened by Green Ridge's press.

Kent Scotten was the only Green Ridge player to reach double figures, hitting for 14 in the loss.

Wednesday night action will see Lincoln meeting Green Ridge at 7 p.m. At 8:30 p.m., Cole Camp will take on the loser of the Northwest-Sacred Heart contest.

Scoring
(Game One)

Northwest (49) — S. Barnes 22, Meyer 9, Killion 8, Shireman 4, F. Barnes 4, Moon 2.
Green Ridge (33) — Scotten 14, Profitt 9, Cook 4, Myears 2, Curtis 2, Ream 2.

Northwest	18	10	11	10—49
Green Ridge	9	4	14	6—33

(Game Two)

Smithton (56) — Templemire 18, Anderson 11, Thomas 8, Teter 8, Turner 8, White 3.
Cole Camp (38) — Case 10, Harms 8, Goosen 6, Yeager 6, Weymuth 4, Schnakenberg 2, Schnell 2.

Smithton	9	16	16	15—56
Cole Camp	10	10	6	12—38

(Game Three)

Warsaw (71) — Barnes 26, Stevens 16, Hedrick 10, Steffans 7, Boeger 5, Kinkead 4, Barb 3.
Lincoln (46) — Pickens 20, Ingram 8, Johnson 8, Nevius 7, Rodewald 2, Kauble 1.

Warsaw	14	16	18	23—71
Lincoln	6	11	10	19—46

Big 8 Roundup

'If' Big Word at MU, ISU

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The little two-letter word IF became a mighty big word Monday in the vocabulary of football Coaches Al Onofrio of Missouri and Johnny Majors of Iowa State.

Both predicted their teams could upset two nationally ranked clubs Saturday IF...

Missouri plays the Oklahoma Sooners. Iowa State tangles with the Nebraska Cornhuskers.

"Every game we go into, we think we can win," said Onofrio. "We'll have to play a much better game than we've played up to now if we win. We can't make any errors."

Majors said, "We can beat them if we keep our mistakes to a minimum and they make some mistakes. It will take a great effort on our part, and it will take some luck. I think everybody knows that."

The coaches made their remarks during the weekly Big Eight Conference telephone briefing session.

Onofrio, whose Tigers have a three-game winning streak that includes victories over Notre Dame and Colorado, said Missouri's problem will be "to keep the football out of their hands."

Oklahoma Coach Chuck Fairbanks said the Tigers have "always been tough for us. They're at the peak as far as momentum is concerned. If we're going to win, we're going to have to run the ball. We never have beaten Missouri throwing."

Majors said he watched the Huskers' Johnny Rodgers, the elusive receiver, runner and kick return star, on film and concluded he's already "seen too much of him. I don't know if we can stop him but I'd like to slow him down."

Nebraska Coach Bob Devaney, who will win his 100th game as Husker coach if the Big Red conquers Iowa State, claimed he hadn't given that matter a thought.

"All I'm thinking about is how to defense Iowa State and how to move the ball against them," he said. "I'm very concerned about Iowa State. They've gathered together the best group of players since we've played them. They're a great football team."

Eddie Crowder, the Colorado coach, was busy trying to drum up ways to halt the passing of Dave Jaynes of Kansas.

"Any passer as gifted as Jaynes poses more special problems," said Crowder. "Kansas is a team that's made great progress. They have the momentum coming off that win over Oklahoma State."

Kansas Coach Don Fambrough noted that Colorado still have a chance to get a postseason bowl invitation despite three defeats.

"Colorado has a lot of fine talent," Fambrough said, "and is always tough at home."

Oklahoma State Coach Dave Smith, eyeing his team's Saturday assignment against Kansas State and quarterback Dennis Morrison, asserted that the Wildcats "do a good job defensively. Morrison has a good arm and is adept at throwing the ball. They come to play."

Vince Gibson, the Wildcat boss who missed on a prediction that Kansas State would beat Missouri last week, quickly turned thumbs down on making one about the game with the Cowboys.

No, no more predictions," he said.

Snowballs just about shoved footballs out of the picture during the first part of the briefing.

Devaney, whose team knocked off Colorado 33-10 in snowy Boulder, Colo., last weekend, said, "something has to be done about throwing those snowballs out there. Eddie Crowder did everything he could to stop it but it didn't do any good."

Students mainly peppered the Nebraska band during the pregame show, staged a snowball-throwing battle among themselves at the half and pitched snowballs in the players' direction during the fourth quarter. They got in some practice shots Friday during the Wyoming-Colorado freshman game.

Devaney said if he "was president or dean of the university or somebody with power to act on the students apprehended, I think I could do something."

Crowder reasoned the best bet was "not to have snow in the stadium."

Fambrough hinted he wasn't worried about snowballs Saturday.

"That doesn't bother me as much as somebody throwing a football," Fambrough said.

College Football Poll

Most Unchanged; MU Up to 14th

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

The top 13 teams in The Associated Press college football ratings, headed by Southern California, remained unchanged today but the defending national champion Nebraska Cornhuskers closed in on second-ranked Alabama.

Southern Cal, a 44-3 victor over Washington State for its ninth consecutive triumph, received 40 first-place votes and 978 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Alabama trounced Mississippi State 58-14 and picked up three first-place ballots and 821 points while Nebraska trimmed Colorado, rated 15th last week, 33-10 and received five votes for No. 1 and 797 points.

Fourth-ranked Michigan got one first-place vote and 708 points after beating Indiana 21-7 while the other top vote went to No. 5 Ohio State, which downed Minnesota 27-19 and earned 600 points.

Louisiana State's last-second 17-16 squeaker over Mississippi enabled the Tigers to hold onto sixth place, followed by Oklahoma, UCLA, Texas and Penn State. Oklahoma turned back Iowa State 20-6, UCLA overtook Stanford 28-23, Texas defeated Southern Methodist 17-9 and Penn State drubbed Maryland 46-16.

Auburn remained atop the Second Ten, followed by Notre Dame, Tennessee, Missouri, Texas Tech, Colorado, Iowa State, North Carolina and Arizona State, with Stanford and Yale tied for 20th.

Last week, the Second Ten consisted of Auburn, Notre Dame, Tennessee, Iowa State, Colorado, Missouri, Louisville, Texas Tech, Air Force and Arkansas.

Louisville, Air Force and Arkansas dropped out of the Top Twenty by losing, respectively, to Tulsa 28-26, Army 17-14 and Texas A&M 10-7.

They were replaced by North Carolina, which beat Clemson 26-10; Arizona State, a 55-14 winner over Texas-El Paso; Stanford, which led eighth-ranked UCLA until the final four minutes, and Yale, an impressive 45-14 winner over favored Dartmouth.

The Top Twenty, with first-place votes in parentheses, season records and total points. Points tabulated on basis of 20-18-16-14-12-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1:

1. USC	(40)	9-0	978
2. Alabama	(3)	8-0	821

Top Trap Shoot Field on Sunday

Dave Richards, John Atkinson and John Reberry were the winners in Sunday's E-Z Speedway trap shooting competition.

Richards captured top honors in the trap division, while Atkinson won sausage and bacon; Reberry won a turkey.

Competition is held each Sunday beginning at 10 a.m. at the speedway, located five miles south of Sedalia on Route F.

Von Raschke Returns To Sedalia Mat Card

What could prove one of the roughest tag team wrestling clashes of the season is on tap tonight at Convention Hall. The event marks the return of Baron Von Raschke, a 270-pounder, to the Sedalia ring.

He will be joined by Nature Boy Kirby for a showdown against Danny Little Bear and Rufus Jones.

Another bruising battle is anticipated when Black Angus, 290 pounds, and the masked Destroyer, 250, collide in the semifinal event.

Scheduled in the special event is a match between Les Thornton and Omar Atlas.

Rounding out the lineup will be a test between Little Bear and Kirby, which will open the 8:15 p.m. card.

McCarver Back to St. Louis

Always Been a Cardinal

ST. LOUIS (AP) — No one would say the prodigal son has returned, but catcher Tim McCarver, who was reacquired by the St. Louis Cardinals in a deal with the Montreal Expos Monday, said his heart "still belonged to the Cardinals."

"This is a real blessing," McCarver said from his Memphis, Tenn., home on learning of the trade which sent him back to St. Louis and young outfielder Jorge Roque to Montreal.

McCarver, 31, who played on three Redbird pennant-winning teams in 1964, '67 and '68, was traded to the Philadelphia Phillies in a seven-player deal that brought Richie Allen to St. Louis after the 1969 season. McCarver went to Montreal after two and one-half seasons in the Quaker City.

"I still have a lot of baseball left," said McCarver who would be used as a left-handed pinchhitter, a backup catcher and possibly at first base.

Roque, 22 hit .233 at Tulsa and .341 at Arkansas of the Texas League before being brought up to play late last season. His pinch-hitting may have impressed them in Montreal where he slugged his only major league homer in September. Roque batted .104 in 32 games for St. Louis.

"In Roque, we're getting a fine young major league outfield prospect," Jim Fanning, Expo general manager, said Monday.

"He not only possesses good running speed and a good throwing arm, but he has a good minor league offensive record. Roque has been carefully scouted for two years," Fanning said.

McCarver was signed by St. Louis out of high school in 1963. His career average is .275 for 13 seasons.

The acquisition of McCarver, according to Cardinal manager Red Schoendienst "gives us a better-balanced bench."

Big 8 Cage Coaches Gather

Some Second Thoughts on 30-second Clock

By JIM BAGBY
Associated Press Writer

KANSAS CITY (AP) — "The intent of the game is to attack the basket," says University of Kansas basketball coach Ted Owens in defense of the 30-second clock, which the Big Eight Conference will put to use this season.

Owens says the clock will eliminate stall games and take the burden off the officials be doing away with the various 5- and 10-second counts. "It will be well-received by the fans and players."

At the opposite point of view is Kansas State boss Jack Hartman, who says flatly: "I don't like it . . . We might possibly have created a situation tor duller games."

The discussion arose Sunday when the Big Eight basketball coaches and officials gathered here for their annual preseason meeting.

The coaches voted 7-1 — and then unanimously with Hartman changing his vote — last spring to adopt the 30-second clock on an experimental basis this season. Now the coaches are having second thoughts.

In a season where the use of freshmen for the first time brought varying degrees of anticipation from the coaches, the subject of the 30-second clock found more supporters for Hartman's position.

Only Colorado boss Sox Walseth fully agreed with Owens, a long-time booster of the proposal. Iowa State's Maury John said he still favors the experiment, but maybe with a 60-second clock — a suggestion that was echoed by several others.

Joe Cipriano of Nebraska admitted he is less than enthusiastic about the clock. Norm Stewart of Missouri argued, "if I had my druthers I'd probably say no." John MacLeod of Oklahoma said he has reservations about the clock, and Oklahoma State's Sam Aubrey spoke of it with mixed feelings.

As expected, however, there was virtually unanimous agreement among the coaches that the upcoming season should wind up about the same as last season.

No formal poll was taken, but six of the coaches picked defending champion Kansas State and last year's runner-up, Missouri, as the top contenders. Stewart went with the Wildcats. Hartman sidestepped, noting "everybody feels they're going to be improved, and I agree."

One or more freshman cagers apparently will fit into the picture for at least six of the league members. Only the Missouri and Iowa State coaches indicated they do not anticipate playing first-year recruits.

In the order of finish from last season, here is how each coach previewed his team:

KANSAS STATE — The Wildcats return five of their top seven from the team that finished 19-9 over-all and won the Big Eight with a 12-2 record, clinching the title by beating Missouri in the next-to-last league game.

Heading the returnees are starters Danny Beard and Lon Kruger, a pair of junior guards, who combined for more than 20 points per game, and senior forward Ernie Kusnyer. Senior center Steve Mitchell saw enough action to average 10.1 per game.

Mitchell at 6-foot-10 and junior forward Larry Williams, 6-9, likely will join the 6-5 Kusnyer on the front line. Lettermen Bob Chipman, Gene McVey and Lindberg White—the latter still out for football—should push for jobs.

Hartman says depth may be enough of a problem that at least two of four rangy freshmen could get into the picture. They are 6-6 Jerry Thruston, 6-5 Tony Pauzauskie, 6-8 Carl Gerlach and 6-5 Bob Noland.

MISSOURI—The most obvious plus for the Tigers back from a 21-6 season and National Invitation Tournament trip is senior frontliner John Brown.

The 6-7 Brown earned All-Big Eight honors by averaging 21.7 points and 10.5 rebounds per game, both second-best in the league. And his .558 field goal percentage topped the conference. Only a broken bone in his foot during the Olympic workouts kept him off the U.S. team in Munich.

Stewart says Brown is fully recovered, although he did not begin full-time workouts until last Friday. A half-dozen other injuries have hampered the Tiger workouts and Stewart says he has been doing a lot of experimentation.

Returning starter Al Eberhard, a 13.9 averager, is set at one forward but Mike Jeffries, a 6-3 senior who started last campaign at forward, may be moved to guard if 6-11 sophomore Gail Wolfe works well at forward. Wolfe missed last season with mononucleosis.

OKLAHOMA — The Sooners could be the youngest team in the Big Eight, or the tallest, or both. Graduation stripped four starters from a team that was 14-12 and 9-5 in the Big Eight.

Junior Ted Evans, a 6-9 hustler who started both at forward and center last season as a sophomore, will be used outside only this season, MacLeod says. That likely will leave the post position for either 6-9 freshman Alvan Adams or 6-11 sophomore John Powell.

MacLeod says Adams has good mobility, strength, speed and stamina. He was the most widely sought of a prize crop of Oklahoma high schoolers and MacLeod landed most of them. Powell averaged 20.7 for the freshman. Six-six Bob Pritchard was 22.6 on the same team and could start at forward.

One guard spot appears set in the hands of 6-1 junior college transfer Lee Gilbert, who averaged 22.5 for Robert Morris, Ill. Freshman Jay Williams and lettermen John Gorman also are bidding for a guard slot, and MacLeod says frosh John Breathwit has a chance to move up. Sophomore redshirt Mike McCurdy and lettermen Russell Burks are pressing for jobs.

KANSAS—Perennial contenders, the Jayhawks slipped to a fourth-place tie in the league and an 11-15 campagn total last season. Four starters have graduated, leaving only 6-3 junior guard Tom Kivisto.

But Owens thinks his squad could be a little more talented over-all than a year ago. And he is high on his guards as a group. "The total guard situation compares with the best in my 13 years at KU," Owens said.

A ruling by the National Collegiate Athletic Association left 6-10 sophomore center Danny Knight ineligible for the first semester, meaning Rick Suttle—also a 6-10 soph—may be on the pivot for the first seven games.

Owens lists Kivisto, Suttle, 6-2 sophomore guard Marshall Rogers, 6-7 senior forward Wilson Barrow, 6-2 sophomore guard Dale Greenlee, 6-6 senior forward Dale Haase and 6-4 sophomore guard Tom Smith as his top seven without Knight.

Lettermen Ken Franklin and Dave Taynor and 6-8 freshman Derrick Glanton offer depth. Owens indicated three of the guards could make the lineup at the same time, enabling the Jayhawks to extend the range of their pressing defense.

NEBRASKA — The Huskers also lost four starters, from a 14-12 club. Cipriano looks to returning regular Tony Reihl, 6-4 senior, to provide leadership with senior Tom Gregory and junior Lee Harris, both 6-2. A lack of size appears problematical and with an eye to the stature enjoyed by the Nebraska footballers, Cipriano kidded, "I hope football goes clear on into January and February."

Help should come from 6-4 forward Quincy Wallace, a transfer from Odessa, Tex., Junior College who high jumps 6-9. The center should be 6-8 junior Brendy Lee, with sophomore guard Kent Reckewey a starter possibility at guard.

Cipriano says freshmen Jerrell Fort and Ricky Marsh, both 6-3, both have good potential and could challenge when they learn the NU system.

Cipriano lists improved team defense and more speed and quickness than last year at Husker strong points.

IOWA STATE—Maury John begins his second year at ISU with veteran leadership from seniors Martinez Denmon at guard and forward Clinton Harris. Dentmon averaged 16.8 last season, Harris 15.2. Battling for the pivot are 6-9 sophomore Larry Loots (rhymes with boats) and 7-0 senior Tom O'Connor, who scored at a 9.6 clip a year ago.

Eric Heft, a 6-1 junior and part-time starter last season, should go at one guard and 6-8 junior Wes Harris has transferred from Fort Dodge, Iowa to contest for a forward slot. Juco transfer Clyde Winters (Sheridan, Wyo.) joins lettermen Mike Capobianco and Jim Reinebach to provide backup help.

COLORADO—Back for his 17th CU season, Big Eight coaching Dean Russell (Sox) Walseth said flexibility will be the Buffs' long suit. He listed 10 or 11 players with experience who have a chance to play regularly. Then 6-7 freshman center Greg Mueller is a bright prospect.

Walseth was high on his forwards, 6-5 senior Steve-Aaker and 6-5 junior Scot Wedman. Lee Haven can go at guard or forward, while Bob Hofman and Jerome Wright are two of the other top guard prospects. All are lettermen. Sophomore Ron Wrigley (6-8) and junior Bill Cole, a transfer from the Air Force Academy, are others who could help.

OKLAHOMA STATE — The Cowboys have their biggest man in more than 25 years in 7-0 sophomore Tim Hund, and Aubrey says, "He's gonna' be a dandy." Which is just what OSU needs after a 4-22 finish a year ago.

Three starters return—juniors David Fisher, Kevin Fitzgerald and Ralph Rasmuson. Fitzgerald is being moved from forward to team with Fisher in the backcourt and Rasmuson moves from the post to forward. Senior Steve Uthoff (6-8) and sophomore Brent Dahle (6-9) are contesting the post position, and Hund could wind up outside.

Aubrey says freshmen Lafayette Threat and Mark Steinmeyer "could spot for us later in the year."

No. 19 Fading

Johnny U.'s Love For Colts Over

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Johnny Unitas kicked his famed No. 19 jersey into a corner. Pro football's "Mr. Quarterback" admitted his love affair with the Baltimore Colts was over.

"There's no use in staying around here," he said, "not the way they're treating me. There's nothing I can do about it. It was their decision not to play me anymore."

Baltimore had just cracked a four-game losing streak, handing the New England Patriots a fifth straight defeat, 24-17, in a Monday night television matchup of National Football League cream puffs.

But, Johnny wasn't celebrating.

Standing two cubicles away was handsome, young Marty Domres. The Ivy Leaguer from Columbia was the crown prince given the job Unitas owned for 16 years.

Somebody asked Domres if Johnny U. helps him.

"We talk," said Marty, refusing to glance toward the quick-dressing old pro. "Yeah, we talk."

Domres hit 10 of 19 against New England for only 89 yards. One of his shots was a 17-yarder for a touchdown to tight end Tom Mitchell. He admitted he still has trouble pulling the trigger.

"I feel more at home each game," he said, toweling a head of thinning hair. "It just takes time. I've become a little too cautious, unwilling to cut it loose. But, that'll come."

Joe Thomas, new general manager of the Colts, was the man who made the decision to bench Unitas and look ahead with the 25-year-old Domres.

"You can't keep going with a quarterback who'll be 40 years old next May," said Thomas, builder of NFL powerhouses as personnel chief at Minnesota and Miami.

John Sandusky, the longtime Colt assistant coach who became the field boss when Thomas fired Don McCafferty a month ago, was smiling over his first victory.

"It wasn't pretty, but it was a win," he said. "It's my first and I'm proud of it." Sandusky's players gave him the game ball as a tribute. He is now 1-2 and the Colts are 2-6, tied with the Pats for third in the American conference East.

Sandusky wondered for awhile if he would survive the "beer bottle touchdown."

In the second quarter with Baltimore ahead 7-3, New England fans were booing over an interference call and another penalty for roughing the passer.

Domres flipped back to Don Nottingham and the chunky runner bounced untouched into the end zone. But, by golly, it wasn't a touchdown. Some unhappy Patriot fan had saved a score with his beer bottle.

One official, the back judge, said he had called timeout amid all the noise after spotting the bottle lying in the end zone.

The unhappy Colts tried it again, but failed. They settled for a nine-yard field goal by Jim O'Brien.

Fairbanks Says Mizzou at Peak

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—"It seems like every week we jump out of the frying pan and into the fire..."

That's how Oklahoma coach Chuck Fairbanks sizes up his Sooners' Big Eight battle with surprising Missouri Saturday at Norman.

OU is coming off a big win over tough Iowa State, 20-6, but Fairbanks says the going might be just as rough Saturday.

"We're catching Missouri at a peak as far as momentum goes," he said at his weekly press luncheon Monday. "They're playing with a lot of emotion and they are playing a lot better than they did earlier.

"I think their recent success stems from the fact they were young and inexperienced and had a new offense (the wishbone). They were committing a number of errors."

In what would have to be considered an understatement, Fairbanks said Missouri "has been very impressive the last couple of weeks." The Tigers are coming off back-to-back upsets of Notre Dame and Colorado and last Saturday's 31-14 beating of Kansas State.

Fairbanks, not noted for his outlandish appraisals, gave linebacker Roderick Shoate a big pat on the back when he proclaimed the Spiro sophomore was "as good as any linebacker I've had at OU."

The rangy and speedy Shoate was in on 22 tackles as the Sooners stopped Iowa State, 20-6.

It was the sixth time Sooner defenders had stopped opponents for scoring a touchdown.

He praised almost everyone on defense, but especially Shoate and tackle Derland Moore, whom he called the most consistent tackle he has coached.

On offense, Fairbanks cited Greg Pruitt and Leon Crosswhite who each scored a touchdown and picked up 104 and 115 yards, respectively, against the Cyclones.

Fairbanks said the Sooner victory came against "a great college football team."

USOC Seeking New Look

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. Olympic Committee, brushed by external problems and facing internal unrest, is going out after a new image—a real Madison Avenue image.

The USOC announced Monday at a meeting here that it hoped to hire a public relations firm to give the group a new—and better—look.

"We feel this is advisable because of the criticism and distortions that came out of the Munich Olympics," said Clifford H. Buck, the outgoing USOC president.

This position was solidified by Robert J. Kane, a longtime Olympic official who now is first vice president of the USOC.

Kane, the athletic director at Cornell University, added that the Olympic Committee "treats our athletes as mindless chattels."

Monday's meeting at a midtown hotel was the first since the turbulent Munich Games, where the U.S. Olympians were beset with a myriad of problems. The various American mishaps, blunders and defeats brought warnings of a possible Congressional investigation and provoked the withdrawal of membership by the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA).

The NCAA, representing most of the colleges and universities in the country, had four members on the USOC's Executive Committee. But they were conspiciously absent Monday as the committee aired its recent problems, discussed future plans and nominated a new slate of officers Monday.

Krumm, a retired businessman from Kenosha, Wis., and Denver, was nominated as president of the committee. Nomination is tantamount to election at the general congress in Colorado Springs this February.

The USOC took only a short time in accepting the NCAA resignation, but left the door open for a possible re-entry by the far-flung group. The athletic directors urged that the USOC meet with NCAA representatives to define problem areas between the two bodies.

Report Pirates Seeking Carlton

PONCE, Puerto Rico (AP) — Roberto Clemente, outfielder for the Pittsburgh Pirates, says his team is trying to wangle pitcher Steve Carlton from the Philadelphia Phillies.

Clemente said Monday the Pirates were actively pursuing a deal.

The Phillies have indicated they would part with Carlton, winner of 27 games and the National League Cy Young award, but only at the price of three or four high-quality regulars.

Fumbleitis

New England's George Hoey, center, fumbles the ball on a kickoff return, practically into the arms of Baltimore's Jack Mildren, right, who in turn fumbled the ball himself. The Patriots regained control of the loose pigskin as Ron Acks finally pounced on it. The action came in the first quarter of Monday night's nationally televised professional football game, played in Foxboro, Mass. The Colts won the contest, 24-17. (UPI)

Opening lead—♦ Q

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Yesterday we commented on the inadvisability of declarer talking during the play. It is even less advisable for a defender to talk.

We have set up the same North-South hands as yesterday, but changed the East-West holdings and the bidding.

North rebid two no-trump. West opened the queen of diamonds; took one look at dummy and remarked, "If I thought you would stay in spades I would have doubled."

South said, "Thank you," and proceeded to wrap the contract around West's neck.

West was an honest man. His remark clearly indicated that he held four trumps to the queen-jack. It also told South that he could make his contract if West held the right distribution.

South won the diamond. Cashed one trump and the other high diamond to discard one club from dummy. Ruffed a diamond in dummy and played three rounds of hearts to discard his own last diamond, followed by three rounds of clubs. South had to ruff the last club while unfortunate West was following suit.

Everyone was down to three cards. South led a low trump and West won with an honor and had to lead the suit back and give South the last two tricks.

♥♣CARD Sense♠♦

The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
	1 ♣	Pass	?

You, South, hold:

♠ Q 8 4 2 ♥ K 9 5 3 ♦ A 7 6 5 ♣ 3

What do you do now?

A—Bid one diamond. This makes it easy for partner to bid a heart or spade if he holds four cards in the suit.

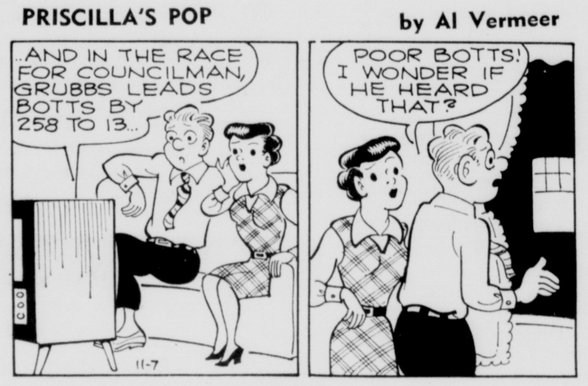

TODAY'S QUESTION

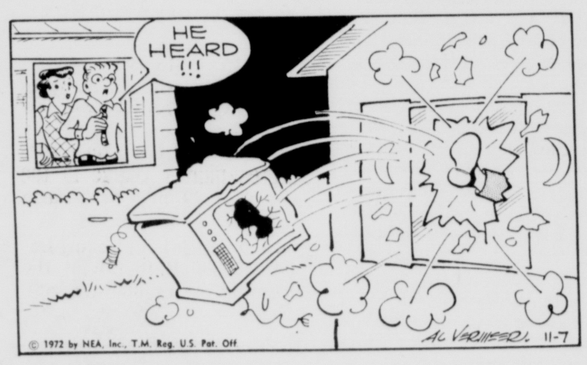

You bid one diamond and your partner bids one no-trump. What do you do now?

Lansky in Miami

The reputed financial brain of the underworld's gambling empire, Meyer Lansky, center, was escorted by FBI agents from U.S. Customs at Miami's International Airport when Lansky returned to the U.S. after a futile quest on two continents for sanctuary from American justice. (UPI)

Lansky Faces Arrest Upon Arrival in Miami

MIAMI (AP) — Denied refuge by six Latin American governments and trapped aboard an airliner which brought him here, reputed underworld financial wizard Meyer Lansky arrived at Miami International Airport Tuesday and was immediately arrested by the FBI.

Lansky, 71, who faces trial on charges of evading taxes on gambling rakeoffs, was ending a two-day aerial odyssey which began Sunday when he left Israel in advance of expulsion orders and flew to Switzerland. From Zurich he flew to Latin American and in succession tried Rio De Janeiro; Buenos Aires; Asuncion, Paraguay; La Paz, Bolivia; Lima, Peru and Panama.

Each Latin American government refused him asylum, and most did not even allow him off the Braniff airliner he had boarded in Asuncion.

Lansky reportedly offered $1 million to any country that would take him in.

Kenneth W. Whittaker, head of the Miami FBI, was waiting with three other agents as Lansky, wearing a blue check sports jacket, black alligator shoes and an open collar white shirt, walked from the plane.

Looking tired but smiling, Lansky, a short gray-haired man, chatted casually with Whittaker as they walked down an enclosed aisle into the Custom's hall.

He was taken to the FBI office here in advance of a bond hearing, scheduled for later in the day before a U.S. magistrate.

U.S. Atty. Robert Rust, asked about the question of bond, said, "With a man of Lansky's wealth, a very very high bond would have to be set to insure his appearance ... This isn't going to be a case where he just flashes a roll of money and walks out.

Lansky faces five federal indictments. He was indicted in Miami in March 1971 when he failed to answer a grand jury subpoena to testify. Later he was indicted by grand juries in Miami, New York and Las Vegas for income tax evasion and interstate transportation in aid of racketeering.

Lansky went to Israel in 1970 and was ordered to leave the country after losing a Supreme Court bid for citizenship under the Law of Return, which promises Israeli citizenship to all Jews. The Israeli high court rejected his appeal Sept. 10 on grounds his presence in the country "might endanger public welfare."

The Israelis provided Lansky with an international travel document. His U.S. passport was picked up by American authorities last year.

Blue Cross Insurance In Phase II Squabble

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The U.S. Attorney's office announced here it was filing suit against Blue Cross-Blue Shield of Kansas City for violation of Phase II price control regulations.

The companies are alleged to have increased premium rates on group health insurance. The government is challenging the method by which these increases are determined.

Assistant U.S. Atty. Vernon A. Poschel said Monday the issue is that the insurance company is using projected figures based on previous years, rather than actual figures in determining a rate base.

George A. Beck, president of Kansas City Blue Cross, declined comment except to say he had not been notified of the filing. He said he thought it inappropriate that the government had released information about the complaint "before it has been served on the so-called violators."

Poschel said there are some 600 Blue Cross-Blue Shield group plans, and the court action is based on only eight representative ones. He declined to specify the increased premium rates.

Poschel said the outcome of the suit may determine future action against Blue Cross-Blue Shield divisions nationwide as well as other health insurance firms. He said many health insurance companies use the same rating formula that is now being challenged in the courts.

The government seeks to enjoin the company from charging rates in violation of Phase II regulations and asks that the company be required to roll back rates to comply with the regulation.

The government also seeks to require Blue Cross-Blue Shield to refund all premiums collected in excess of those allowed by the regulation, and in addition seeks a civil penalty of $2,500 for each violation.

In the fall of 1971 Blue Cross-Blue Shield agreed to defer all premium increases on merit rate group contracts for the duration of the wage-price freeze. The companies agreed to refund premiums collected in violation of the freeze.

During a second investigation, the Internal Revenue Service determined the companies did make certain refunds for Phase I violations, but made no adjustments or modifications in the formula as required by Phase II regulations.

Strange Ears A Kidney Key?

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The size and shape of a child's ears may be a clue to the state of his kidney, according to a University of Texas urologist.

Dr. Paul C. Peters told a meeting of urologists here that ears and kidneys reach key stages of development at about the same time in an embryo.

"Funny-looking" ears can mean the kidney is also abnormal and possibly defective, he said.

Answers Reduced Charge

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — One of four defendants charged with the Sept. 23 drug slaying of Dennis Lee Plumly entered a plea of guilty Monday in Sedgwick County District Court to a reduced charge of second degree murder.

Hector A. Conde, 24, Wichita, told Judge Howard C. Kline he was pleading guilty because he was guilty.

"Tell me what you did to make you think so," Kline said.

"Well," Conde answered," we got together, had sort of a council. It was brought to our attention that someone had betrayed us and a decision was made — we had to eliminate him," Conde said.

"You participated?" Kline asked.

"Yes sir." Conde answered.

Kline deferred sentencing to an unspecified date.

A preliminary hearing did begin Monday before Judge Owen Ballinger, county court of common pleas, for three other defendants in the case.

They are Michael Burrow, 19, Wichita, Mark E. Dohlmar, 20, Tampa, Fla., and Edward S. Weser, 25, Boston, Mass. They are charged with first degree murder in the death of Plumly, conspiracy to kidnap him and aggravated kidnaping. Plumly's body was found in a shallow grave in west Wichita.

County Atty. Keith Sanborn told Uline the decision to reduce the charge against Conde was made to keep an agreement Atty. Gen. Vern Miller made with Conde to tell what he knew about Plumly's death and the events surrounding it.

Miller testified Monday before Ballinger that he told Conde officers were going to need some help in the case. Even though he thought Conde was guilty of first degree murder, Miller said if Conde would give them help the charge would be reduced.

Moberly Resident Arraigned Monday

FULTON, Mo. (AP) — A 22-year-old Moberly, Mo. man, Joseph Dean Bussell, was arraigned Monday in Callaway County Circuit Court on a first-degree murder charge in the slaying of a Renz Prison Farm inmate July 8.

He is accused of stabbing David Michael Roth, 24, at the prison farm in Callaway County.

Bussell was held in lieu of $5,000 bond. No date was set for a preliminary hearing.

Argument Fatal For St. Louisan

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Police said Clarence Muse, 36, was killed today during an argument with several other men on a city street.

Muse died about 2 a.m. when one of the men in the argument pulled a gun and shot him in the chest. Police were looking for a man about 25 years old in connection with the shooting.

Bonanza Bites Dust

Bonanza, television's second longest running western, has reached the end of its trail and will be replaced by a movie, NBC announced Monday. This photo shows the stars of the series when it was at its peak in 1966. In the foreground are Lorne Greene and Michael Landon; in the rear the late Dan Blocker. (UPI)

'Bonanza' Booted By NBC Television

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Ben Cartwright is closing down the Ponderosa Ranch. Little Joe, the last of the Cartwright sons, is leaving home. "Bonanza" has been canceled.

"Bonanza," at one time the most popular show on television, winds up 14 years on the NBC Television Network next Jan. 23.

The filming of the last episode of the Western drama — the 431st — will be completed tomorrow night.

The long-running show was canceled Monday by NBC, along with "The Bold Ones," "Banyon" and "Night Gallery."

"Bonanza" was switched from Sunday to Tuesday nights at the beginning of this season, but the Cartwrights were no match for CBS' "Maude." It slipped badly in the ratings and in the latest report was in 52nd place.

Executive Producer David Dortort, who had learned the news only two hours earlier, said, "We've had a very long and beautiful run."

But it will not be the last seen of "Bonanza," the first television show ever filmed from the beginning in 1959 in color. The early years of the show are now in syndication to stations under the title of "Ponderosa." The show's worldwide audience is estimated at 400 million.

Dortort said the cancellation came as a surprise. He was told personally by Lawrence White, NBC vice president of programming.

"White said that 'Bonanza' had always meant so much to NBC that they didn't want to see it peter out," he said.

Dortort said the show was still trying to overcome "the tremendous gap" left by the death last May 13 of Dan Blocker, who played Hoss Cartwright.

"I don't think we really quite got over his death," Dortort said. "We were confident that by the end of the season we would be back in the mainstream. Apparently the network didn't want to invest the time."

Lorne Greene as Ben and Michael Landon as Joe were the two remaining Cartwrights. A third son, Adam, was written out of the series when Pernell Roberts quit in 1965.

People in the News

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — Former President and Mrs. Harry S. Truman requested absentee ballots for today's election, according to the Jackson County Board of Election Commissioners.

Absentee ballots may be requested because of infirmity, among other reasons. Truman is 88 and Mrs. Truman, 87.

The former president and his wife also requested absentee ballots for the Missouri primary in August. In previous elections, the couple had voted in person.

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Salli Ann Noren, a 20-year-old student at Pasadena City College, has been named the 1973 Rose Bowl queen.

Miss Noren, who has red hair, brown eyes, stands 5-feet-8½ inches tall and weighs 135, is a major in secretarial science and wants to become an airline stewardess.

Her hobbies are golfing and skiing.

She has two brothers and lives with her family in Altadena.

Queen Salli and her royal court of six princesses will reign over the Tournament of Roses parade and the Rose Bowl football game on New Year's Day.

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Rock musician Buddy Miles has lost a $5,000 judgment to a promoter for whom he failed to appear for a concert date here two years ago.

Superior Court Judge Willard J. Roe signed a default judgment Monday in favor of Marc DeWood, who had sued the black recording star for failure to appear at the concert.

When brought to trial, the case ended in a then-undisclosed settlement under which Miles was to pay DeWood $1,000 damages and appear in Spokane within seven months or pay $5,000.

DeWood brought the present action after the seven months expired and Miles and his rock group did not appear.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Joey Bishop has been credited by the Coast Guard with his second rescue at sea in three weeks.

The comedian was at the helm of his 42-foot cruiser Sonuvagun II Monday when he saw a partly submerged sailboat through heavy fog.

Bishop and his party hauled the occupant of the boat aboard unharmed and towed the sailboat back to Marina del Rey.

Three weeks ago Bishop rescued five persons whose motorboat was disabled.

More than 800 species of fish make the Gulf of California one of North America's richest fishing grounds, the National Geographic Society says.

Claims Smear

Former Governor John McDeithen said Monday a story in the Sunday edition of Newsday was a deliberate attempt to smear him on the eve of the U.S. Senate election. McKeithen said the story that he got Sen. Russell Long to block an indictment on federal charges was planted by his opponent Bennett Johnston. McKeithen is running as an Independent, Johnston as a Democrat, in the race to fill the seat of the late Allen Ellender in Louisiana. (UPI)

Absentee Ballot Total Has Reached New Record

By HOWARD ANGIONE
Associated Press Writer

All of Tuesday's voters won't be going to the polls. Record numbers of them have already cast their ballots.

Among them is former President Lyndon B. Johnson, who told Democratic vice presidential candidate Sargent Shriver by telephone Monday that he had voted for the McGovern-Shriver ticket by absentee ballot.

Johnson took advantage of a Texas law that allows persons unsure if they will be home on election day to vote early. He and his wife voted a week ago Monday in Johnson City, Tex.

Election officials say collegians able to vote for the first time because of the 1971 constitutional amendment that lowered the voting age to 18 account for most of the increase in demand for absentee ballots, but they're not alone.

Thousands of older voters have taken advantage of laws, many of them recently liberalized, that allow them to vote by mail before election day or to visit a courthouse and cast their ballots in advance.

In Albany County, N.Y., a spokesman said 8,000 absentee ballots have been cast this year, compared to 2,148 in 1968 due to "vacationing, hunting, fishing and people who won't bother to cross the street to vote. This election won't be over for a week."

In Minnesota, elections coordinator Larry Anderson said the number of requests to the secretary of state's office for absentee ballots is "the highest we've ever had." He said the demand was particularly heavy in rural counties such as Faribault, where officials estimated that seven per cent of the vote had been cast by Monday.

In Michigan, officials said an increase of one-third and more in requests for absentee ballots seemed due to collegians, a campaign by the secretary of state to encourage absentee ballots and a new law reducing from 70 to 65 the age at which an individual may vote without going to the polls. One voting clerk speculated that the secretary's campaign may have led some people to choose the absentee route instead of standing in line.

In California, primary mixups that forced many voters to wait for hours in long lines were credited with helping to spur increased absentee voting.

Many voting officials noted that the increased demand for absentee ballots was in keeping with generally increased registrations. But in Memphis, Tenn., Jack Perry, elections commissioner for Shelby County, said the increase had outstripped the percentage and "personally I think this is a good indication that people are interested, on both a national and a local level.

Rotary Club Commended For Activity

Len Gregg, governor of Rotary District 607, met with officers and committee chairmen of the Sedalia Rotary Club prior to their regular meeting Nov. 6 at Bothwell Hotel.

Gregg commended the local club on its activities in the four areas of Rotary service — club, community, vocational and international. Gregg also emphasized the importance of careful selection of new members and thorough indoctrination of them before being taken into the organization.

Under community and international service, Gregg discussed entertaining high school youths and exchange students from foreign countries. Rural-urban projects were discussed.

The Rotary district 607 conference will be at Warrensburg March 2 to 4 Gregg announced. The Sedalia club will be in charge of the noon luncheon and table decorations at the conference.

Transplant Patients Are Fine

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The father of a 19-year-old Nashville, Ill., youth and his 13-year-old sister who received dual kidney transplants reported Monday the two "apparently are doing fine."

William H. Kern Jr., a warehouse worker in East St. Louis, Ill., accompanied his son Michael and daughter Nancy to hospitals for checkups following transplants performed Sept. 20.

Medical authorities, who disclosed the transplants Monday, said the two were able to accept kidney transplants from a single donor because of having identical tissue types.

Twins sometimes have identical tissue types, but the occurrence in brother and sister is unique, said Dr. William T. Newton, a professor of surgery at the Washington University School of Medicine, who performed the surgery on Michael.

Michael underwent the transplant at the Barnes Hospital complex in the city and Nancy her transplant at St. Louis Children's Hospital, where Dr. Charles B. Anderson performed the operation.

Newton and Anderson said progress by both has been good. They and four of eight brothers and sisters have been afflicted by a rare, hereditary kidney disease. Three Kern children died.

Michael was released from the hospital three weeks ago and his sister released last week.

Sees War, Peace As Election Issue

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnam said that the American people in the presidential election Tuesday are choosing between war and peace.

An editorial from Nhan Dan, the official newspaper, said President Nixon still "shows himself the representative of the most perfidious and bellicose forces of aggression." It added:

"It is up to the American people to select the way of war and aggression, the way to worse and worse defeat, or the way of ending the war to build a just peace, peace in real honor, the way that is in accord with the new force balance of the world and the flow of history.

"If the U.S. leaders choose to continue the war, the Vietnamese people will have no other alternative than to continue the way they have marched in the last dozen years, persistently and vigorously, urging the struggle to total victory."

3—In Memoriam

IN MEMORY OF Clarence Steele, who died 1 year ago today, November 7, 1971.

A Little Step Away
To close the eye, to fall asleep,
To draw a labored breath,
To find release from daily cares
In what we know as death ...
Is this the crowning of a life,
The aim or end thereof?
The totaled sum of consciousness,
The ripened fruit of love?
It cannot be, for works of God
Are wrought for mobler ends,
And those away continue on
In the hearts of Kin and Friends,
It Cannot be, for they live on
A little step away.
The soul, the everlasting life,
Has found a better day ...

A TIME TO HONOR. .

ALL

THOSE LIVING AND DEAD

VETERANS

AIR FORCE

Those Gallant Patriots Who Put Their Lives On The Line For The Security & Liberty That Is Ours To Share Today.

A VETERAN is a man who loves his country —without reservation.

★

A VETERAN is a man who is willing to lay down his life to uphold the freedoms of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

★

A VETERAN is a man proud of his flag. He will fight to his death to protect the country for which it stands from those who would dare to dishonor it.

★

A VETERAN is a man who cherishes his freedom, passionately; serves his country, honorably and supports her willingly.

★

A VETERAN is a man well-deserving of our appreciation, our love and our prayers, 365 days a year.

★

SINCE THE ORIGINAL ARMISTICE DAY, NOVEMBER, 11, 1918, veteran organizations have been putting special emphasis upon honoring the American war veterans everywhere. Not just with their prayers, but with their special actions and programs. They have introduced numerous pieces of legislation in Congress in Washington to benetit and help the veterans of our American wars and to insure the welfare of their survivors. For this one factor, alone, we owe them much. Just look around!

TODAY, WE MUST PRESS ON and expect bigger and better things from these organizations. That is why we, the veterans of Pettis County, Missouri, continually strive forward with these interests in mind. It is our aim to further preserve the memories of our fallen comrades and of those who have lived on after them. It means a lot to the families and friends left behind, if not to the veteran himself.

AN HONORABLE PEACE AMONG NATIONS and an understanding among the peoples of the world is what each of them strives to gain for all. Perhaps now is the greatest time of need for our country. Not just in wartime. We, as veterans, stand up for what we believe in—what is right and just. Without reservations, both honorably and willingly, we have fought for those rights and for the basic principles for which this country was founded. Now, we serve our nation in another special hour of need. As civilians, still working for God and country.

IF YOU BELIEVE IN AMERICA and in what it stands for, we invite you to do something about it too. Get out on the sidewalks of Sedalia and support your local veteran organizations. Honor them all with your presence this 54th Anniversary of the original Armistice Day.

★ Please Fly Your Flag On Your Home or Business!

Show these proud Americans that you too believe in America and the fine tradition it stands for. Let your United States Flag present itself as your special or personal welcome to both local Pettis County Veterans and those visiting our city from across the state.

★ Make them feel welcome!

TREAD WEAR EXPECTANCY

Because of variable driving habits and road conditions under which tires are used, it is impractical for Montgomery Ward, and conceivably misleading to our customers, to guarantee any specific number of months or miles of tread wear. We can, however, indicate the wear potential we have built into our tires in terms of service in normal family use. If a Riverside tire wears down to the tread wear indicators during the Tread Wear Expectancy, Montgomery Ward will upon presentation of the tire and evidence of date of purchase replace the tire for the then current price less the following dollar allowance:

Tread Wear Expectancy	Tread Wearout Allowance Prorated on Miles Driven
40,000 miles	$13.00
45 month	10.00
39 month	8.00
36 month	6.00
33 month	5.00
30 month	4.00
24 month	3.00
18 month	2.00

Tread Wear Expectancy offer does not apply to tires used commercially.

IMMEDIATE REPLACEMENT BATTERY GUARANTEE

Montgomery Ward guarantees this battery to be free from defects in material and workmanship. If this battery fails to hold a charge Montgomery Ward will: 1. For 90 days from purchase, replace the battery free. 2. After 90 days, to the end of the guarantee period specified, replace the battery, charging a prorated amount—based on time since purchase—of the regular no trade-in selling price then in effect. Batteries used in commercial vehicles are guaranteed on a similar prorata basis for half of the normally specified term. For service under this guarantee, return battery with evidence of date of purchase to any Montgomery Ward branch.
